EUROPEAN NEWS.

Results of the Recent French Elections.

Reception of Minister Washburne by the Emperor Napoleon.

The Messrs. Laird on the Building of the Alabama.

The Inman steamer City of Baltimore, which left Liverpool May 26, and Queenstown May 27, arrived at this port yesterday morning, with two days' later news from Europe than was at hand by the Weser.

The Austrian Consul at Leghorn was assassinated there on the night of May 24, while walking with the Austrian General CRENNEVILLE. General CRENNEVILLE was also wounded. The two unknown individuals who assailed the Consul and General CRENNEVILLE have not been arrested. It is believed that the Consul was struck by mistake, the real object of the assassins being to murder General CRENNEVILLE from motives of personal vengeance connected with the latter's command of the city during the state of siege in 1849. General CRENNEVILLE was wounded in the face.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Débats says that the relations between Turkey and Egypt are not of the best just now, and that difficulties are likely to arise in consequence. The Porte suspects the Viceroy of wishing to break off his connection with the Turkish Empire, and it has protested at Cairo against the attitude of the Egyptian Press, which has for some time written in favor of establishing Egypt as an independent Kingdom. On the other hand, the Viceroy complains of the favor shown to his exiled brother, MUSTAPHA FAZYL, and his cousin, HALIM-PACHA, at Constantinople; and reproaches the Porte for supporting the pretensions of those Princes to the Egyptian Throne.

CONTINENTAL SUMMARY.

The French Elections—Republican Successes—Reception of Mr. Washburne by the Emperor—Speech of his Majesty—The Farewell Banquet to General Dix.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday, May 26, 1869.

The elections are over,and we are now in a position to form an accurate estimate of their results. In Paris the victory of the Democracy has been complete, and is pregnant with warning to the Government. In the elections of 1863 the official candidates obtained an aggregate of 83,500 votes, against 149,496 given to the opposition. In that which has just taken place an immense advance has been made by the latter. The figures are: officious and quasi independent candidates favored by the Government, 77,943 votes; candidates of the opposition, 230,515. This shows a clear gain of 81,109 votes to the Republican and Socialist element, for considering the antecedents of the candidates who have been defeated, or will be so on a second ballot, I am entitled to thus designate the so-called Democratic majority in the capital.

When such men as EMILE OLLIVIER, JULES FAVRE, Ad. GUEROULT and CARNOT are beaten in the metropolitan constituencies on a first ballot, and candidates like THIERS and GARNIER PAGES are forced to a second, one may infer that the atrocious doctrines enunciated by M. BANCEL and other candidates of that stripe during the canvass have made alarming way in the Department of the Seine, and that the constitutional opposition from which so much was hoped, is not a combination likely to be speedily realized.

The impressions created by the result of the metropolitan elections are confirmed by those which have taken place in the other great centres of population. At Rouen the Democratic candidate, M. DESSEAUX, has obtained a majority of more than 1,000 votes over M. POUYER QUERTIER, and, although there is to be a second ballot, there is no doubt of his election. In Nantes the three Liberal candidates have conjointly obtained a majority of nearly 11,000 votes over the official one, and M. GUEPIN (Democrat) will certainly be elected on the second ballot. At Havre there is to be a second ballot between MM. ANCEL LECESNE and PANLEVEY, the candidate favored by the Government, M. GROS, being left a long distance behind. At Bordeaux JULES SIMON has been elected by 17,520 votes to 12,255. M. ARAGO (LARRIEN), Democrat, will also be elected there on the second ballot. In Lyons the Government put forward no serious candidates, and there as in Paris the Democratic opposition has been very generally successful. In Marseilles M. GABETTA obtained the relative majority in the first ballot against MM. THIERS and SAUVAIRE BARTHELEMY, Liberals, as well as against M. DE LESSIPS, the official candidate, who only succeeded in securing 4,535 out of 19,848 votes. At Saint Etienne, M. DORIAN, the Democratic candidate, has been reelected, and in the First Circumscription of the same department M. BERTHOLM, a former representative of the people, has obtained the relative majority. At Dijon, M. MAGNIN, at Dole, M. GREVY, and at Mulhouse, M. TACHARD, Democrats, have been elected by large majorities. Among the few important defeats experienced by the opposition are those of M. GLAIS-BIZOIN, famous for his sarcastic sallies in the Chamber, M. GIROT PONZOL, M. EMANUEL ARAGO and M. VICTOR LEFRANC.

Considerable surprise has been manifested at the failure of M. THIERS at Lille, Marseilles and Vienne, while men like GAMBETTA and EUGENE PELLETAN have received double elections. I do not see any ground for astonishment at it. M. THIERS' prejudices and attachments have stranded him a long way behind the party with which he usually acts, and, though they are glad to make use of him when opportunity offers, he commands no amount of sympathy or respect among the masses. I am glad to say, however, that he will not be left entirely out in the cold, as he will probably be elected for the Second Circumscription of the Department of the Seine on the second ballot. It is likely that in the Seventh Circumscription of the same department HENRI ROCHEFORT will be returned in place of JULES FAVRE, by the union of M. CANTAGREL'S votes with his own. It is a question, however, whether the Government will allow him to take his seat, as there is a judicial sentence hanging over him. His return is a great mortification to the Emperor, who has a strong personal feeling against him for the doubts which he has raised about his legitimacy. I am happy to say that though he has failed in Paris, EMILE OLLIVIER has been returned for the Var. Whatever may be his imperialist proclivities, the country cannot spare the legislative services of such a man.

THE PRUSSIAN PARLIAMENT.

It is stated as probable that the Prussian Legislature will be convoked for the middle of next month, as this Government entertains the apprehension that the Federal Parliament will reject the financial projets de loi which are at present under discussion. As it has become indispensable that the equilibrium of the Prussian budget, disturbed by the drains for military expenses, shall be reëstablished within the shortest delay possible, M. DE BISMARCK will, in all likelihood, not postpone beyond a few weeks the convention of the Prussian Parliament

RECEPTION OF MR. WASHBURNE BY THE EMPEROR.

On Sunday Hon. E. B. WASHBURNE and Major-General DIX were received in public audience at the Tuileries by the Emperor, the former to present the letters accrediting him as Minister from the United States to this Court, and the latter to take leave of his Majesty. Mr. WASHBURNE was accompanied by Colonel HOFFMAN, Secretary of Legation, and Colonel FRANK MOORE, Assistant Secretary. The new Minister was conveyed to the Palace in one of the Court carriages with all the usual formalities. General DIX was first received to present his letters of recall, and had a long interview with the Emperor and Empress. The General has always been a great favorite with their Majesties, and I understand that at this farewell visit they expressed in the most cordial terms the regret they felt at his departure, and the pleasure it would give them to see him again whenever he revisited Paris.

The new Minister, Mr. WASHBURNE, was then introduced with his suite, and on delivering his credentials into the hands of the Emperor addressed his Majesty as follows:

YOUR MAJESTY: I have the honor of placing in your hands my letter of credence, which will inform you that I have been appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to reside near your Majesty. In performing this duty it affords me pleasure to be enabled to state that I bear to your Majesty the best wishes of the President and the people of the United States for the personal welfare of yourself, of Her Majesty the Empress, and the Prince Imperial, as well as for the prosperity and happiness of the people of your Empire. It is the desire of my Government to maintain and cultivate the most amicable relations with the Government of France. I am most happy to assure your Majesty that there never has been a time when the people of the United States and their Government have more warmly desired to uphold and perpetuate the traditional friendships of the two countries. Cordially agreeing in my own personal views with those of my countrymen, I enter upon the discharge of my duties with the hope that, while properly guarding the interests confided to me, my residence near your Majesty may contribute to a happy continuation of the friendly relations now existing between the Government of your Majesty and that of the United States. If it shall be my good fortune to accomplish that object, I shall then best answer the wishes of the President of the United States, whose partiality enables me to give utterance to the sentiments which I have now had the honor to express to your Majesty.

The Emperor said:

I am very glad to meet you as the representative of the United States of America, and am pleased to hear the assurance which you give me of the good feelings existing among the people of the United States toward France. It is an amicable feeling that has existed without intermission for a hundred years, and I concur with you in the hope of its continuation. I am happy, also, to see as representative of the United States, near my Court, a person so distinguished in the history of your country.

The Emperor's brief reply was made in English. After these formalities had been gone through their Majesties entered into familiar conversation with the Minister, and asked a number of questions having relation to the material and educational progress of the United States. The Empress was particularly gracious, and her amiability and simplicity of manner charmed those who approached her for the first time on this occasion.

MOVEMENTS OF MR. WASHBURNE.

Our new Minister, after staying a short time with Mr. BURLINGAME, has taken temporary apartments at No. 59 Avenue Josephine, where he will remain for a month until he goes to Hombourg. In the meanwhile he will settle upon the home in which he is to take up his permanent residence, and give orders for his furniture. Colonel and Mrs. MOORE will stay with him until he leaves for the Springs. He will return from Hombourg in August to meet Mrs. WASHBURNE, who will arrive from the United States about the middle of the month. He is overwhelmed with invitations, but, with the exception of a formal dinner at the Chinese Embassy, and another at M. MICHEL CHEVALLIER'S, he has declined most of them, his health being still such as to require repose.

THE BANQUET TO GENERAL DIX.

The farewell dinner to General DIX is to come off on the 1st, at the Grand Hotel. The arrangements are not as yet completed, but I believe it is contemplated to admit ladies. The General left on Monday last for London, where he will remain a few days. Immediately after the banquet here, he will leave for the United States.

THE CHINESE EMBASSY.

The celestial diplomats are to close up their business here by the 21st of next month, and will then visit successively Berlin, Copenhagen, Stockholm, the Hague, Brussels and Florence. The treaty which Mr. BURLINGAME is on the point of concluding with the French Government is nearly identical with that executed with England. Its most important feature is the prevention of naval officers exacting reparations for injuries done to French subjects on the Chinese coasts, without redress being first applied for through the regular diplomatic channels and in the forms prescribed by European international law.

THE ALABAMA.

Important Statement of Laird Brothers—Who Built the Rebel Privateer.

To the Editor of the London Times:

We have hitherto refrained from answering any of the attacks made upon us as builders of the Alabama, not wishing to prejudice in any way the negotiations entered into between the Government of this country and the United States, which, if they had been concluded in a satisfactory manner, would probably have led to an inquiry into all the circumstances connected with the building of ships and supply of war materials by various parties to Northern and Southern belligerents during the American war, and thereby have given us an opportunity of explaining the part we took in building and delivering the Alabama at this port.

The Johnson-Clarendon Convention having been rejected by the United States, we think the time has come to remove the erroneous impressions that have prevailed on this subject, as it cannot be to the advantage of the country that unfounded statements as to this one transaction should remain uncontradicted, and be used adversely to this country, while the larger question of the assistance in naval, military and other supplies rendered to the North as well as the South during the war should be hushed up.

The allegations made, and so often repeated that many people believe them, are—that we not only built, but armed, manned and equipped the Alabama to cruise against the Northern States, and therefore committed an illegal act; and that to induce us to enter into such arrangements we were paid an extravagant price for the ship and machinery.

We shall therefore proceed to show that these statements are unfounded, and that the contract to build the Alabama was entered into by us in the usual course of our business as a mere commercial transaction, and at a price moderate for vessels of her class, the firm which we now represent having for upwards of 30 years been in the habit of building vessels of war for our own Government, for foreign Governments direct, and for the agents of foreign Governments.

The Alabama was built in our works, where about 2,500 men were at that time employed, without any security, and during her building was constantly inspected by visitors from various parts of the world, and by the officers of Her Majesty's Customs, as proved by the following report from Mr. MORGAN, Surveyor of Her Majesty's Customs, Liverpool, dated the 28th of June, 1862:

"The officers have at all times free access to the building yards of the Messrs. LAIRD, at Birkenhead, where the said vessel is now lying, and there has been no attempt on the part of her builders to disguise, what is most apparent to all, that she is intended for a ship of war."—Alabama Papers, March 24, 1863.

When ready she was launched and taken into our graving dock, to have her machinery put on board and to be masted and rigged.

On the 12th of June this work was so far advanced that the vessel was taken for a trial trip outside the port, and all being found satisfactory was brought back to our graving dock to be completed.

On the 12th of July, more than a fortnight before she left the Mersey, she was moved from our works and placed in the Great Float public dock at Birkenhead, to which all parties have access, and was there supplied by the purchaser with coals and provisions for her voyage.

There was no haste or secrecy observed in any of these operations, and had there been anything illegal in the build or the fitting of the ship there was ample time and opportunity for the Government then to have seized her. They did not do so, although they were informed on the 21st of July by their officers that the ship appeared to be ready for sea, and might leave at any hour she pleased.

This appears by the following extract from a letter addressed by the Collector of Customs, Liverpool, to the Commissioners of Customs, London, and dated the 21st of July, 1862, a week before the ship left the dock:

"I shall feel obliged by the Board being pleased to instruct me by telegraph how I am to act, as the ship appears to be ready for sea, and may leave at any hour she pleases."

It would, in fact, appear that the intention of the Government to detain the ship was based, not on the character or condition of the ship herself, but because a man named PASSMORE and two others made affidavits that they were engaged to serve on board her, although they did not state that they were engaged by the builders.

Sir ROUNDELL PALMER, on the 27th of March, 1863, alludes to this as follows:

"But I wish the House to understand that in those depositions there was a great mass of hearsay evidence, which, taken by itself, could not form the basis of any action. Of the six depositions transmitted on the 22d of July only one was good for anything at all—viz., the evidence of a person named PASSMORE, which was sufficient to prove the material facts. Two more were sent, corroborating PASSMORE, on the 24th, and were received by Earl RUSSELL on the 26th."

And Mr. SUMNER alludes to PASSMORE'S affidavit in his speech of April, 1869.

If it had been true (of which, however, there is no proof) that these men had been engaged to serve on board, the parties so engaging them would have been involved in pecuniary penalties, for payment of which the ship might have been detained until the penalties were satisfied, or good bail given. See copy of letter from the Commissioners of Customs to the Collector of Customs, Liverpool, dated 23d July, 1862, viz.:

"We acquaint you that we have communicated with our solicitor on the subject, who has advised us that the evidence submitted is not sufficient to justify any steps being taken against the vessel under either the sixth or seventh section of the act 59 George III., cap. 69, and you are to govern yourself accordingly. The solicitor has, however, stated that if there should be sufficient evidence to satisfy a Court of enlistment of individuals, they would be liable to pecuniary penalties, for security of which, if recovered, this department might detain the ship until those penalties are satisfied or good bail given; but there is not sufficient evidence to require the Customs to prosecute. It is, however, competent for the United States Consul, or any other person, to do so at their own risk if they see fit."

The United States Consul did not, however, avail himself of this power to prosecute.

A week elapsed after the opinion was given by the Solicitor of Customs in London, and the Collector of Customs in Liverpool had reported that the ship appeared to be ready for sea, and might leave at any hour she pleased, and she still remained in the Birkenhead public dock.

We were not requested by the Government to detain the ship, and on the afternoon of the 28th she was moved from the berth in the Great Float, and the same evening was undocked and came to anchor in the river, off the public landing stage in Liverpool, until the morning of the 29th of July, when she left the river about 10 o'clock.

At this time the Alabama had not on board any part of her armament, ammunition or warlike stores, as shown by the Surveyor of Customs' report, July 30, 1862:

"I have only to add that your directions to keep a strict watch on the said vessel have been carried out, and I write in the fullest confidence that she left this port without any part of her armament on board. She had not as much as a shot, shell-gun or musket."—Alabama Papers, March 23, 1863.

We here draw special attention to the fact that we did not supply, or engage to supply, the Alabama, either before or after she left the Mersey, with any part of her armament, provisions, coals, or warlike stores of any description, or engage any men to serve on board her, or to join her after she left the port.

We merely completed a contract to build and deliver an unarmed and unequipped ship in the port of Liverpool.

We were never informed by the purchaser of the Alabama of the arrangements he had made for manning, arming, equipping and commissioning that vessel at a foreign port, nor had we any idea of her having gone to the Azores until that fact was generally known by the public.

Our opinion as to the legality of building and delivering the ship in the way we did may not be of much value, but we submit that the opinion of some of the most eminent lawyers of the day should have weight, and we, therefore, give the following, on a case submitted to them some months after the Alabama had left Liverpool:

OPINIONS OF MR. MELLISH, SIR HUGH CAIRNS AND MR. KEMPLAY AS TO LEGALITY OF BUILDING ALABAMA.

I am of opinion that Messrs. LAIRD had a right to build the ship which has since been called the Alabama in the manner they did, and that they have committed no offence against either the common law or the Foreign Enlistment act with reference to that ship. I am of opinion that the simple building of a ship, even although the ship be of a kind apparently adapted for warlike purposes, and delivering such ship to a purchaser in an English port, even although the purchaser is suspected to be the agent of a foreign belligerent Power, does not constitute an offence against the Foreign Enlistment act (59 George III., cap. 69, sec. 7) on the part of the builder, unless the builder makes himself a party to the equipping of the vessel for warlike purposes. The Alabama, indeed, appears to me to have been equipped at the Azores, and not in England at all.

GEORGE MELLISH.

No. 3 HARCOURT BUILDINGS, Feb. 6, 1863.

We entirely concur in the opinions given by Mr. MELLISH on the statements laid before him, and our opinion would not be altered if the fact were that Messrs. LAIRD BROTHERS knew they were building the Alabama for an agent of the Confederate Government.

H. H. CAIRNS,
JAMES KEMPLAY.

April 17, 1863.

We also give the opinion of Chief Baron POLLOCK on the trial of the Alexandra, June, 1863:

"Many allusions in the course of this case had been made to the Alabama, but he held that as that vessel left Liverpool unarmed, and quite ship-shape, she committed no unlawful act; and we had nothing to do with the fact that at a subsequent period she was armed and converted into a vessel of war at Terceira."

We have stated that the Alabama left the Mersey an unarmed ship, and was not fitted or furnished as a man-of-war. This is confirmed by the following extracts from the letters and speeches of Lord CLARENDON and Sir ROUNDELL PALMER (the Solicitor-General.)

Lord CLARENDON'S letter to Mr. ADAMS, December 2, 1865, quoted by Earl RUSSELL in his speech, March 27, 1868:

"It is, nevertheless, my duty, in closing this correspondence, to observe that no armed vessels departed during the war from a British port to cruise against the commerce of the United States."

Solicitor-General's (Sir ROUNDELL PALMER'S) speech in the House of Commons, March 27, 1863:

"It was not till the Alabama reached the Azores that she received her stores, her captain, or her papers, and that she hoisted the Confederate flag. It is not true that she departed from the shores of this country as a ship armed for war."

Lord PALMERSTON also, in the debate of the 27th of March, 1863, makes the following statement:

"I have myself great doubts whether, if we had seized the Alabama, we should not have been liable to considerable damages. It is generally known that she sailed from this country unarmed and not properly fitted out for war, and that she received her armament, equipment and crew in a foreign port. Therefore, whatever suspicions we may have had—and they were well founded as it afterward turned out—as to the intended destination of the vessel, her condition at that time would not have justified a seizure."

And the views he then expressed were proved to be correct by the result of the trial in the Alexandria case, which vessel was released after the decision of the House of Lords, and £3,700 damages and costs paid by the Government to the owners. See memorandum attached to Earl RUSSELL'S letter to Mr. ADAMS, dated Nov. 3, 1865:

"The trial ended in the discharge of the vessel, and the costs and damages having been compromised for £3,700, she was delivered to the owners. She was then sent to Nassau, where she was again tried on a similar charge of violation of the Foreign Enlistment act, and again acquitted:

We now come to the question of the price paid for the Alabama and her machinery.

The price we received for constructing the hull, masts, rigging, sails, boats, cables and general mercantile outfit of the Alabama and her machinery was less than the cost of similar vessels in Her Majesty's service, although she was built and her engines made in every respect equal to them. The details of the price we are quite willing to give to Her Majesty's Government should they desire it.

It has been stated that in the conduct of our business in these transactions we sought our own gain irrespective of municipal or international law, thereby endangering the friendly relations between this country and America. The opinions of the eminent statesmen and lawyers we have quoted show the building of the Alabama to have been in accordance with the existing laws of England, and in 1861, when we undertook the contract, and for long after, there was nothing to show that our doing so was at variance with the opinions of our own countrymen or with the practice of foreign nations.

But in 1864 other questions had arisen as to the rights of neutrals and belligerents, which rendered it apparent that a strict interpretation of the existing law would not satisfy those whose interests were affected, and in that year we declined to accept an order to build a large ironclad vessel for an agent of the Confederate Government, although one condition of the contract was to have been that the ship should not be delivered until the conclusion of the war. The cost, however, was to be paid to us by installments, in such a way and so secured as to make it for us a perfectly safe and profitable commercial transaction, and we were advised by the best authority that there was nothing in our municipal or international law to prevent us taking the contract. Our private gain here was willingly sacrificed, because we felt that, from the complications that had arisen in reference to neutral and belligerent rights, a strict interpretation of the law might tend to aggravate the then existing differences between this country and the American Government, and had there been the same feeling on the subject in 1861, the Alabama would not have been built by us.

We have given these facts and quoted these opinions as to the building of the Alabama to clear that transaction from the erroneous statements with which it has been surrounded.

It cannot be to the interest of this country to allow public opinion to turn on imperfect information; and as the Johnson-Clarendon Treaty has been rejected, an inquiry instituted by a Royal Commission or a committee of the House of Commons into the support given the North and South during the war, in reference to ships, warlike stores, guns, ammunition, armor-plates, and the enlistment of men to serve for either of the belligerents, would tend to place all the matters in dispute clearly before the British Parliament and people, and enable them to approach any further negotiations with the United States on a more satisfactory basis than they have hitherto done.

Should a general inquiry of this kind be decided on we shall be glad to give any information and assistance in our power.

It is constantly asserted in America, and by many persons in this country, that Mr. J. LAIRD, M. P. for Birkenhead, was the builder of the Alabama.

This is not the case, as Mr. LAIRD'S interest in our firm ceased before the Alabama was built, and some time before his election to serve in Parliament; but we may add that Mr. LAIRD knew we were building this ship, and for whom we were building her.

We must apologize for the length of this letter, but hope that the importance of the subject will justify our requesting its insertion.

We are, respectfully, your obedient servants,
LAIRD BROTHERS.

BIRKENHEAD IRON WORKS,
BIRKENHEAD, May 25.

Press Comments on the Letter.

From the Morning Post, May 27.

However convenient it may be for a certain section of the American public to allege that this country is responsible for the depredations committed by the Alabama and her sister cruisers, it must not be forgotten that in repudiating our liability we simply followed the example set to us by the American Government during the Presidency of Mr. Monroe, when, under precisely similar circumstances, it rejected claims made by Portugal for depredations committed on Portuguese shipping by vessels which sailed from American ports. The Foreign Enlistment act of this country was modeled after the analogous act of Congress, and it is rather a remarkable circumstance that, when proceedings were instituted by the Crown to procure the forfeiture of the Alexandra, these proceedings failed mainly because it was shown that the American Judges had held in similar instances that the sale of a ship, though destined for belligerent purposes did not constitute an infringement of the Foreign Enlistment act. They drew no distinction between selling a ship and selling a cannon to a belligerent Power, and the English Courts adopted the same views. The Alabama, as the Messrs. LAIRD have shown, was notoriously intended to be used as a vessel of war. Her destination was suspected, and the question was formally submitted to the law advisers of the Customs whether the Government would be justified in detaining her. They decided that they would not, and the soundness of this decision was afterward demonstrated in the most practical manner when the Government, having seized the Alexandra, it was held by the Court of Exchequer that such seizure was illegal, and the Government found themselves compelled to pay a considerable sum to the owners as damages for her detention. So far, therefore, as the Messrs. LAIRD were concerned, the transaction was perfectly legitimate; and if the Alabama had been seized before she left the Mersey the Government would unquestionably have been guilty of a wrongful act.

Considerable stress has at different times been laid by the American Government on the fact that before the Alabama quitted England a man named PASSMORE made an affidavit that he had been engaged to serve in her with the declared object of engaging in hostile operations against the United States. The English Government thought this man's testimony insufficient to justify them in detaining the vessel; but, as it now appears, it was open to the American Consul at Liverpool, if he had thought proper, to have taken action in the matter, of course at his own risk. He declined to do so; and if the representatives of the American Government in this country did not think themselves justified in putting the law in motion it is rather hard to impute blame to the English Government for the exercise of similar caution. The fact is incontestable, and was admitted by the Court of Exchequer in the Alexandra case, that the Government would not have been justified in preventing the Alabama quitting the port of Liverpool, seeing that she did so without so much as a signal-gun on board. If she embarked a complete armament at Terceira the English Government was not liable for that act, and the shipbuilders were not to blame for any transaction of which they knew nothing until they heard of it as an item of public news, and which they were powerless to prevent. No one could contend that the agents of the Confederate Government were not fully entitled to purchase any vessel lying in an English port which the owners were willing to sell; and, if either on the high seas or in other than British waters, they subsequently converted such vessel into a ship of war, no blame could possibly attach either to the English Government or to the vendors of the ship. The vindication of the Messrs. LAIRD is morally and legally as complete as that which has been long since offered on the part of the Government. The law was inadequate to prevent the transaction complained of; and, as this is a free country, the sole remedy lay not in the hands of the Executive but of the Legislature.

THE BRIGGS ARSON CASE.

Examination of the Case by Justice Dowling—The Accused Waive their Rights and are Held for Trial.

Justice DOWLING went into a formal examination yesterday morning in the case of JOHN UNDERHILL BRIGGS, ROBERT L. BRIGGS, HENRY C. ROSS and WM. P. SHELDON, who are accused of together having planned and executed the destruction of Messrs. BRIGGS BROS. livery-stables, on Twenty-third-street, by fire, on the 30th of December last. The several preliminary affidavits and statements made before the Magistrate during the past week have been already published in full, so that the readers of the TIMES have had a clear idea of the several facts alleged as the basis of the prosecution of the case.

When the Magistrate assumed his seat the prosecution was opened by the clerk being directed to read the affidavits of WILLIAM REYNOLDS, JAMES MCGONIGAL and WILLIAM P. SHELDON, and these lengthy and important documents were evidently listened to by all of the accused with deep interest and attention. As soon as the affidavits were gone through and their contents made known, WILLIAM P. SHELDON made oath that the statement made by him on Saturday, in presence of witnesses, was true and correct in every particular.

Justice DOWLING having stated that the documents just read would be used as a portion of the direct evidence of the witnesses for the people, and that they were then in the hands of the defence for cross-examination, counsel for the accused made a brief address to the Court, in which he claimed that his clients were wholly guiltless of the crime laid to their charge, and that they felt so confident of an acquittal before a jury, that they had decided, with his consent and advice, in waiving all further examination, and would give any amount of bail pending their appearance for trial at the General Sessions. This course seemed to surprised the counsel for the prosecution, who were evidently prepared for a long and tedious siege during the cross-examination.

The Magistrate, seemingly much relieved at the proposed sudden close of the case, so far as he was concerned, acquiesced in the decision of the counsel for defence, and announced that he would consent that the bail of the Messrs. BRIGGS and Mr. ROSS should remain as already arranged, and he would accept bail for Mr. SHELDON in the like sum of $50,000. This was not forthcoming, however, so the unfortunate SHELDON remains in the Tombs in default thereof. SHELDON, in his formal examination, prior to being fully committed, that stated he is 41 years of age, a native of Ontario County, N. Y., and a veterinary surgeon. He denied that his reply to the charge was that contained in his statement already published. JOHN UNDERHILL BRIGGS and his brother, ROBT. L. BRIGGS, made the following answer to the complaint, and the same was appended to the papers in the case:

"It would be, as we are advised by counsel, sufficient to answer 'not guilty,' but we desire further to say that we have waived examination, given bail without now producing witnesses, because the Magistrate, as we are also advised, can only estimate the question of probable cause, and may consider himself bound for the present to accept the sworn allegations to our apparent prejudice. We deny the inconsistent inventions of the complainants wholly and in all their parts, and are ready to meet them before any jury, whether those inventions be produced to defeat our insurance claims, or whether failing even to oblige us to modify our claims, then to attack criminally our good character, and at the proper time we will show the conspiracy that has been entered into between insurance agents and purchasable witnesses to blackmail or annoy us by the present charge."

HENRY C. ROSS is 24 years of age, was born in Ontario County, resides at No. 148 West Twenty-fourth-street, and the foreman for BRIGGS BROTHERS. He said he was not guilty, and made an answer embodying the same challenge as that offered by his employers. The Magistrate then closed the case and forwarded the papers to the Grand Jury for immediate action thereon. The examination was attended by a large number of persons interested in the case and the probable fate of the accused.

AFFAIRS IN CUBA.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP CITY OF MEXICO.

The steamship City of Mexico, from Sisal and Vera Cruz, vid Havana, reached this port yesterday, with important advices. Purser MCLAUGHLIN has our thanks for the prompt delivery of our files and letters.

Dulce Kicked Out—His Expulsion Termed a Resignation—General Pelaez Seeks Refuge Aboard the Victoria—The Cause of the Revolution and Division Among the Spaniards—The Cubans Delighted—The Fillibusters and Insurgents—War News—Shipwreck.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Wednesday, June 2, 1869.

The threatened and expected riot on Sunday last did not take place, not because the partisans of the anti-Dulce Party feared to provoke or encounter the combat, but because DULCE backed out, leaving the field clear to his opponents, Mr. GONZALO CASTANON and company. The upholders of DULCE stated that CASTANON apologized most humbly and made all manner of promises to the Captain-General, alleging that the Captain-General was misinformed and that he (DULCE) had nothing to fear from him or his friends. All such reports are mere idle gossip, and were not believed by any person knowing the two men. Neither DULCE nor CASTANON is a coward, nor would either attempt to solve a dispute by argument. They are too hot-headed and impulsive for that.

But in order to give a correct account of the present division among the Spaniards, it will be necessary to give the cause and beginning of the difficulty. Previous to DULCE'S arrival he was already suspected of leaning more toward the Cubans than to the old country Spaniards, his former administration and acts having been too recent to be forgotten; and naturally he found a strong party, composed of ex-slave traders, with all their tendencies toward reviving the slave trade still very powerful, hordes of disappointed office-seekers as well as many office-holders, many ultras among the middle classes and that large number of Spaniards residing in Havana and known as the ignorant and lower classes, all strongly biased against him. His grant of the amnesty and his forty-day proclamation, which only resulted in strengthening the Cuban forces; his release of such of their leaders and adherents as were then in prisons, made them more hopeful of success, as if the Government indirectly admitted its weakness by offering terms of compromise. Hence resulted the memorable deluge of so-called Liberal journals and the Villanueva Theatre riot in Havana. DULCE undoubtedly acted in good faith, and counted on his personal popularity among the Cubans to produce the desired result, that of reëstablishing peace and order throughout the island. He did not take into account that the Cubans only flattered him in order to create a division among the Spaniards, and that they only saw in him a somewhat milder edition of the military satraps who have ruled and not governed Cuba. According to an old Spanish maxim, which has often been invoked when some change among the higher officials took place, DULCE was merely el mismo perro con otro collar—"the same dog with another collar." That party among the Cubans which really did support DULCE is the same party which is now aiding the Spaniards, and who would support LERSUNDI, CABALLERO DE RODAS, or any other Captain-General, either for the sake of interest and ambition, or because they were really convinced that a Cuban Republic and the ruin of the Island are synonymous.

These Cubans, however, represent a very large and influential party of the wealthiest planters and those most celebrated for their prudence and intelligence as members of the learned professions. At any rate even this party, so really in the Spanish interest and despised by the revolutionary Cubans they and now as traitors to the cause, did not convince the ultra Spaniards that DULCE was trying the most feasible method of crushing the rebellion by giving countenance and support to the organization of a Cuban party in opposition to the revolutionists, but on the contrary made him more suspected because this party was composed of men born in the Island of Cuba, and not in some mud hovel in Gallicia, or some fisherman's hut on the Cantabrian coast. These alone are sure signs of loyalty and true blue blood, which received the finishing touch by the polish imparted by a long residence in this island.

The ultra Spanish party, composed of the principal portion of the volunteer forces, and led by that portion described above, have lately been taken with a fit of virtuous indignation, forgetting that they would act exactly the same as those whom they accuse and mistrust, if they were only afforded the opportunity. The many reports about the disloyalty of prominent Judges and prosecuting attorneys, the proofs of the venality of several military leaders, and the almost open sale of safe conducts to well-known revolutionists, led to bitter recriminations between the leaders of the Dulce and the ultra factions. The chief of the former was DULCE in name; in reality, however, a triumvirate, composed of NARCISSO DE LA ESCOSURA, DIAZ, the Captain-General's Secretary, and VALLS Y PUIG. The opposition was led by GONZALO CASTANON, the editor of the Voz de Cuba; SUAREZ VIGIL, commander of the volunteer artillery and Judge of the Supreme Court; DURAN Y CUERRO, who holds the same position; PEREZ CALVO, the Director of Administration, who had formerly been expelled by LERSUNDI, and MIJARES, Ex-Government Censor, well known in his own house. This latter party pretended to have documents and letters in their possession proving the complicity of DULCE and his gang, and also of some of the members of the Provisional Government in Spain, with the leaders of the revolutionary movement here; that funds had been forwarded from Cuba to aid in overthrowing the Government of Queen ISABELLA, and that said funds arrived a few days after the battle of Alcolea, but, nevertheless, were appropriated by the Provisional Government. As a recompense for this financial aid, the revolution, if successful, was to grant Cuba its autonomy, similar to that enjoyed by Canada. All this may have some foundation, but it appears very doubtful, and may arise from one of the usual bribery cases so common to Spain and its dependencies. Other documents and proofs were also reported to be in possession of CASTANON, who woke up one morning and found himself famous. DULCE heard of this, noticed the growing agitation among the people, and, sending for CASTANON, informed him that he was an enemy to Spain and damaging the cause of the Spaniards, and that he would send him to Spain as a prisoner together with eleven others. CASTANON answered politely yet firmly, that such was not the case, and that instead of creating a division among the supporters of the Government he was using his utmost endeavors to cement them. On leaving DULCE he informed his friends, and before morning thousands of volunteers had sworn to defend CASTNON at all hazards. Prominent Spaniards then interfered, and LESCA, whose prestige is not yet on the wane, consented to act as peacemaker. He executed his mission to the satisfaction of all parties, and the orders for the embarking of CASTANON were revoked. But the bitter feeling against DULCE was not allayed. Matters however remained quiet until Sunday evening, when the south side steamer arrived from Batabano, bringing the Spanish General PELAEZ as a passenger, much against his will, and proving positively that the indignation of the Spaniards against the Government, and especially against the leaders selling themselves, had reached its climax, and extended all over the island. PELAEZ was ordered to assume command over the Cinco Villas, especially the Cienfuegos, but on reaching that city, the volunteers positively refused to allow him to disembark, and threatened to kill him if he did so, whereupon that General remained quietly on board and came to Havana. PELAEZ is accused of sending the troops in contrary directions to the points occupied by the insurgents, thus affording the latter ample opportunities to attack and kill minor detachments of volunteers. For this heroic and valiant conduct (vide Diario) he is charged with having received the insignificant amount of $100,000. The only persons sent to Spain as prisoners, were the Ex-Censor MIGARES, who stated to DULCE that his conscience absolved him, DULCE answering, "Examine your conscience closely and you will find that it accuses you of many rascally acts, and if it absolves you, why, then your conscience is differently constituted from that of honest people." The other prisoner was Rev. Father ANACLETS ARREDONDO, pariah priest of Monserate Church, the bitter enemy of Bishop MARTINEZ, and author of several pamphlets against that personage, his latest production in that line being a pasquine posted on the street corners, charging the Bishop with being an insurgent. The Bishop is anything but a respectable or honest man, but the Padre ARREDONDO lives in a glass house, his reputation being none of the best, and enjoying a certain notoriety for having, at various times, disclosed the secrets of the confessional. His latest exploit in that respect was the revelation of the secrets communicated to him by the late DR. LE RIVEREND on his deathbed, the priest not even denying that he had disclosed the secret.

THE VOLUNTEERS RAMPANT.

Yesterday afternoon knots of volunteers were observed in different parts of the city, and others belonging to battalions not on duty were observed to arm themselves and sally forth in the streets. Shortly after a boat pushed off from the wharf, and General PELAEZ embarked, taking refuge on board of the iron-clad Victoria, and the volunteers found the bird flown when they arrived at his residence. It was their intention to arrest and try him before a court-martial, and, if found guilty, to execute him as a traitor to his country. Furious at the escape of their prey, several hundred assembled in front of the palace, and the hoarse cries of "Muere DULCE" could be heard at short intervals. At about 10 P. M. two shots were fired in front of the palace, one version being that they had been discharged through carelessness, while others state that a volunteer fired at one of DULCE'S Staff. The excitement throughout the city was intense, and it was generally believed that DULCE would either be taken by force from the palace and embarked on one of the men-of-war by the volunteers, or else killed. Several small detachments of regular cavalry arrived at the palace, whose side-doors had been closed, and still remain so. They were not allowed to enter the principal door, and were continually exposed to the jibes and insults of the volunteers. DULCE asked for the protection of the Navy, but the sailors or marines could not reach the palace; and so the night passed. At 4 o'clock this morning, three battalions of volunteers began to assemble at the Tacon, and all the morning it was feared that scenes of riot and bloodshed would ensue if DULCE remained at the palace; but up to 11 A. M. nothing had taken place, and it was then rumored that CASTANON and other members of his party had succeeded in quieting the volunteers somewhat. Half an hour later, however, the revolution was un fait accompli. DULCE had been turned out and kindly permitted to retire to his quineta and plant sweet potatoes. ESPINAZ assumed the reins of Government.

THE FILLIBUSTERS.

It is now known that the different expeditions landed have joined the main armies of the Cubans. According to Spanish advices, the largest portion of those who landed have been killed, but nothing goes to prove that the Salvator expedition was molested in the least or lost a single article of its cargo, which consisted of six cannon, 12,

Corporation would be justified in making more than necessary expenditures upon wharves and piers at the present rates of wharfage. Every attempt of the municipal authorities to obtain the passage of laws increasing wharfage rates has been successfully opposed by monopolists. During the recent legislative session, the most strenuous exertions were made by the Sinking Fund Commissioners to obtain such an increase, and also the passage of a bill giving them power to improve the entire water front in a manner commensurate with the demands of commerce and transit, and by the issue of bonds payable in the future. But a conjoined lobby of pecuniarily interested persons and political barbor-masters proved the strongest in influence. Every aim of the municipal authorities to obtain proper control of their own property has been, in years past, successfully resisted. Appropriations and plans had been repeatedly asked of, submitted at Albany. If, therefore, the local authorities are not permitted to control their property, none but partisans seeking to pander to rural prejudices, at any depreciation of the Metropolis, should hold us responsible for structures that remain as metropolitan disgraces.

LEGAL MATTERS.

The comprehensive reports of the Corporation Counsel, Corporation Attorney and Public Administrator will suggest much appropriate action to your Committees.

The Mayor at present merely recommends that claims against the City should, if possible, be adjusted without litigation. It is rare, indeed, for any corporation, private or public, to save money through a law suit. The sympathies of juryman always, and the leaning, insensibly to themselves, of Judges oftentimes, favor the tangible plaintiff against the intangible incorporation.

In connection with legal matters, it may be added that there will soon be presented for your consideration a codification of the ordinances which the Mayor and his legal coadjutors are preparing. Some of the ordinances are susceptible of condensation. Others may be simplified. A few should be conformed to and made consistent with recent State laws, and many new ordinances are required. The existing remedies are also capable of being adjusted to more summary, precise and practical results.

However, the substantial Mayor and Common Council of the City for making or enforcing ordinances, seems to be the ingenious Superintendent of Police, who has been allowed, at least, until lately, to usurp the functions of the Board in issuing, at his discretion, all manner of orders. Those, when accepted and obeyed by the Patrolmen, become more effective than ordinances. It is, perhaps, fortunate under such circumstances of power and its exercise, that the City possesses a superintendent whose tact, calmness, courtesy, prudence, amiability and devotion to the rights of persons and property, and all the principles of magna charta, have been, by his actions, made widely apparent throughout the land.

CROTON AQUEDUCT DEPARTMENT.

The report of the Croton Aqueduct Department presents nothing new or interesting. With a view to supply information which it ought to have furnished us, the Mayor requested from CHARLES H. HASWELL, Esq., (formerly Chief Engineer of the United States Navy, and the author of a celebrated work on engineering,) a communication about affairs embraced under the Croton Department, which seems so important and valuable that it is herewith submitted. (Schedule E.)

The citizens of New-York have very generally entertained an opinion that the affairs of the Croton Aqueduct Department were conducted in the most economical, efficient, scientific and serviceable manner. The result of the Mayor's observations thus far has led him to a very different opinion, which, in a future communication, after the litigation has been determined, he will present for discussion. It may be enough, in instance, in addition to the matters referred to by Mr. HASWELL, that not long since scores of house-blocks in the City were, for forty-eight hours, shut off from water supply, thus exposing the City to losses by fire which in magnitude might have exceeded the whole first cost of the Croton Aqueduct. And this happened twenty-eight years after the water was introduced.

At this time the acting members of the Croton Aqueduct Board are not, in any respect, City officers. They constitute such a peculiar kind of irresponsible corporation by themselves that the City ought not, in any way wise, to be accredited or debited with their acts.

It is now seven years since the Mayor and Common Council have been allowed a voice in selecting the heads of this, one of the theoretical departments of the City Government. The legislative history of the Croton Aqueduct Board, for nearly ten years, has presented a continuous chronicling by its officers of their efforts to continue themselves in office by appeals for Legislative aid. The President of the Board was so notoriously incompetent for the duties of his important trust, as far back as 1863, that his friends were compelled to resort to legislative legerdemain, in order to deprive the local authorities of the pleasure of giving the Croton Board a sober, intelligent and executive head. But finally, in December, 1866, his extended term of office ended. Mayor HOFFMAN and your predecessors filled up the new term by the appointment of a gentleman. The present President, however, resisted the claims of the new incumbent, and claimed that the Mayor and Common Council had lost the power to appoint a President of the Croton Board, because an act of the Legislature, which was smuggled through in his interest, had provided that vacancies in the Croton Department should be filled by the remaing members. The remaining Trustee, however, claims that he had been appointed under that act, and for the very obviously legal reason that the expiration of a term was not an occurrence covered by the intention or the letter of the act respecting vacancies. In the Spring of 1867 more legislative legerdemain extended the terms of each of the Croton Board as were "then in office." If that act was constitutional, and embraced any officer, it embraced the gentleman who had been appointed by the Mayor and Common Council, but who, although not physically in an official chair, was behind an official desk, was legally in office, (as entitled to it,) providing that by using the phrase, vacancies in office shall be filled by the remaining Commissioners, the appointing power had not been taken away from the local authorities.

Shortly afterward the engineer resigned, and the extraordinary spectacle was presented of the President, whose tenure was at least doubtful, joining the said Commissioner in selecting a new engineer. If the President was not then, and is not now, legally in office, of course that selection of the engineer by the other (one) Commissioner was illegal. The Supreme Court has decided that the present President is not in office. He appealed to the Court of Appeals with a stay of proceedings. The latter Court is expected to decide the question during the current month. As the Mayor belongs to a class of lawyers who hold such fealty to the bench that they never conceive it possible for an American Court to render a partisan decision, he reposes the utmost trust in the logic of the expected judgment.

Just at this period of metropolitan growth, it is important that the Croton Board should be in full accord with the other local authorities, and should display executive vigor and ability adequate to what citizens expect from a Board intrusted with great power of improvement and ornament. But even if the claims of the present incumbents be legally tenable, there is actually no mode of removing them from office; not even for cause. An attempt was instituted by the City authorities, at the last session of the Legislature, to pass, in this behalf, another act, but the measure was adroitly made, in the interest of the present incumbents, to assume a partisan aspect, and of course it was killed.

ASSESSMENTS.

One great obstacle hitherto to City improvement was an assessment section requiring the whole expense of an improvement to be levied upon the property-owners. This was confessedly unjust to them in a large number of proposed improvements. The latter benefited the City as a whole. Attempts were made to distribute the assessment by comprising large areas under the word "benefited." This was also unjust. But a recent law provides that in cases where the Commissioners agree that the proposed improvement benefits the City, half the expense shall be borne by general taxation and by the issue of bonds, so as to distribute the expense upon the future increase of the metropolis. That act also changes the plan of assessment from the taxable to the marketable value of property, so far as regards the other half of the expense borne by property-holders. But the principle should be applied to pavements and sewage. To a certain extent the tax levy has allowed pavements to be thus paid for.

As to sewage, an illustration will explain. The Legislature, in 1865, authorized the Croton Aqueduct Board to frame and carry into effect a plan of sewege for the whole city. Practically that cannot be done, if payment is to be made by local assessments. Property will not bear the expense. The size of sewers in different streets must be determined, not by the necessity of such streets, but by the relation of each sewer to the plan of which it is a part. The pecuniary relation of each sewer to property drained by it is not determined by the cost of construction of such sewer, and cannot possibly be ascertained till the whole system is completed, and, of course, cannot be equitably apportioned by assessors under our present system. If the whole is paid by taxation, the expense is defrayed by property in proportion to its value; and this is right. Neither is it just to charge upon property the whole expense of an improvement which will benefit the City for many years. If a projected work will last fifty years, the expense should be spread over that period. This cannot be done by assessment; it may by general taxation, in connection with which City improvement bonds may be issued as necessity requires, maturing at different times during the estimated duration of the works for the construction of which they are issued. Besides, under the late assessment system, coteries of selfish property-owners from a small section of the City could always vexatiously delay even if they could not defeat, valuable and necessary improvements demanded by the great body of citizens. Next winter we must make another fight for additional laws, securing the equities just referred to.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC CHARITIES AND CORRECTION.

The Mayor commends to your attention the interesting report of the Department of Public Charities and Correction, and hopes that you will, in every respect, continue to aid the enterprising, economical and useful labors of its Commissioners. Since the report was presented, legislation has invested them with authority to build a foundling hospital: to establish a free intelligence office for the stranger, the oppressed, the needy and the outcast; to institute a nautical school, with provision for a ship on which navigation can be practically taught to the children of the poor; and to establish the nucleus of a down-town hospital, rendered necessary by the removal of the New-York Hospital.

The Commissioners should be authorized to build a new City prison. It is absolutely necessary, in the name of Christian civilization, that one should be constructed. Although the present building is cleanly kept and well governed, its measure of accommodations and location disgrace the City. For several years the late District-Attorney endeavored to impress upon the Legislature the necessity for a new City prison. That convenient phrase "municipal jobbery," always answered him. The Mayor hopes that, with your cooperation, a new place of detention for those suspected of being criminals may be provided by the next Legislature. A great English writer, by the power of his pen, destroyed a famous prison, which was equally a disgrace to London. The Citizens' Association, whose agents seem to desire to possess the same kind of power, might as effectually aid in obtaining the reform indicated for New-York.

PAVEMENT.

There are two hundred and twelve miles of streets in the City of New-York, of which eighty-one miles are in block, and five miles in wooden pavement. The remainder are either subjected to cobblestones or await pavement. Since the city has experienced the Guidet pavement on Broadway, it seems apparent that the new blocks must hereafter supersede the Belgian wherever stone pavement is desired. The Nicolson wooden pavement has not been found reliable except in side streets. An adaptation of the wooden pavement called the Stowe pavement, has been tried in San Francisco with great success. Your attention is invited to it, and also to the Fisk concrete pavement. The latter is composed of gravel, broken stone, cinders and coal ashes (free from loam, clay, garbage, or any other foreign substance,) mixed in definite proportion with tar, pitch, resin, and asphaltum. This composition is spread upon the road-bed in layers from two to four inches in thickness, and each layer thoroughly rolled with heavy rollers. The thickness of this composition when the roadway is completed is not less than six inches. This pavement is substantially well known in Paris and Continental cities, where it has been extensively used. The American patent, however, is free to better adaptation to our climate, as respects the action of Summer heat upon the surface, or as regards the friction during Winter from the calks which, by the continuous frosts of an American Winter, are rendered necessary for horses' shoes. The Common Council appear by their action about a year ago to have favorably received the Fisk pavement, and the Chief Tax law, by its proviso allowing the use of that pavement, evidences that it received the approbation of the Legislature and the Citizens' Association. The report of the Committee on Roads to the Board of Councilmen, Feb. 4, 1868, agreed that the Fisk concrete pavement had proved the wear and tear of horses and vehicles, made no dust or mud, was hard and smooth, and yet animals did not slip upon it, and that it was superior to the French concrete pavement laid in Paris, which has worn for thirty years; that it was superior to stone, and cheaper than any other pavement in the City; and that this macadam concrete pavement had been tested in Central Park, where, during 1867, 40,000 square feet were laid. Also that it had been tested in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, Druid Hill, Baltimore, in streets of New-Haven, Chicago, Washington and Lockhaven; and that six inches pressed to four inches in depth of the pavement, had stood the test, near Hamilton Ferry, Brooklyn, withstood, without perceptible impression upon it, a year's attack by the vast trucks engaged daily in hauling anchors, chains and the coarsest mercantile material. The Legislature this year had the fairness to empower the Street Commissioner, in his discretion, to mend all the old cobble-stone pavements. They are everywhere in a deplorable condition. The expense of repairing them was so enormous that prior legislation shrunk from voting the supplies. The latter, for the many, increased yearly. But the expense is to be defrayed by the issue of bonds.

STREET LIGHT.

Something practical must be done immediately to give our citizens a better quality of gas than they have. We are compelled by law to have it in our power to become independent of gas companies. It has been suggested over and over again that consumers living in a block should club together and make their own gas. Science has been long at work at finding out new processes of making light, and the results so far are extremely gratifying. A cheaper and much better light can be procured from the new oxygen, or magnesium, or magneto-electric, or gasoline, or many other new processes of light from the wretched street glimmer vouchsafed by the gas companies. Science has also, in the new magnesium light, made some important discoveries. It may be called artificial sunlight, as it shows all objects in their true colors. The magneto-electric light is, perhaps, the best of all for street purposes. One of these lights placed on Broadway recently shed a brilliant effulgence for one-quarter of a mile on either side.

Some months ago Baron HAUSSMANN ordered the discoverer of the new method of producing oxygen gas to light up that part of the French capital. After which the Emperor ordered the Court of the Tuileries to be illuminated in the same way. Those brilliant exhibitions led to the granting permission to lay an extra pipe in the City of Paris for the conveyance of oxygen, to be used with the street gas. A few wealthy gentlemen have recently erected, on their own first-street, near Eleventh-avenue, for producing this oxygen, and the retorts are now in daily operation. They have had about 20,000 cubic feet of oxygen in a gas holder, and made much brilliant lime-lighting alternately air and steam over the manganate of soda.

Many of the lights just referred to can be produced at an expense less than the charge of the gas companies. In due time some of these inventions must supersede gas for street purposes. The time will come when our citizens can laugh at the former gas lamps, as much as they did forty years ago at the old-fashioned oil lamps. Between private gas consumers and the companies, the former must always be at the mercy of the latter. The latter are an hundred in number, throughout the State—by always working together, and naturally in their own interests. They constitute together an immense monopoly, which can always suitably impress their views upon legislators. But as between the gas companies and the City, practical results and beneficial to the latter can be obtained by submitting the quality of the gas, for which we certainly pay remunerative prices, to a scientific test, under direction of municipal servants, and by the City selecting larger burners for lamps. The Mayor recommends that your appropriate committees forthwith select some section of the City for practical experiments upon the efficacy of the latest inventions in street lighting.

CLEAN STREETS.

The streets of New-York are assumed to be swept under the provision of a contract made several years ago. Municipal annals during the past fifty years evidence the unpopularity of street-cleaning inspectors and contractors. There is no use in denying that our streets and avenues cannot be kept clean for the sum now paid to the contractor. The sum which perhaps was adequate when the contract was made, is now insufficient. A legislative attempt was recently made by the municipal authorities to increase the stipend and provide stronger guarantees for performance of labor, but it was unsuccessful. If the taxpayers want their streets thoroughly cleaned, they must make up their minds to pay a proper sum for it. But they can also do much to aid the authorities. If the sweepings and refuse from the interior of shops, stores, manufactories and houses were carefully removed by householders, and not furtively thrown into the thoroughfares; if some pride was taken in maintaining cleanliness in front of premises, fully one-half the present expense and labor of the authorities in trying to maintain clean thoroughfares would be saved. The contractor might be aided by policemen detailed to his office. Independent and spasmodic enforcement of ordinances by the general detail of patrolmen are not practicable, and the ruts of the present police system are very deep.

CITY IMPROVEMENTS.

But the most important, as well as interesting subjects for our municipal care, are: First, how to prevent, in the daytime, the chokings of thoroughfares; secondly, how, toward nightfall, to afford two hundred thousand people an easy and rapid access to their homes from their places of toil and business.

To practically and immediately solve these problems, the City authorities could almost afford to surrender their entire time and attention.

Every one must have noticed that, whereas, in the infancy of New-York City, people came to it from all parts of our own country "to make fortunes," they have recently thronged here either to increase the fortunes already began elsewhere, or to spend them amid the luxuries and comforts of a great national metropolis. New-York has been, therefore, for some time becoming a centre, not only for accumulating but investing fortunes. And the tendency of population, and the traffic to our City, is so great that we are in danger of being hampered by our own prosperity.

If our down-town thoroughfares are annoyingly choked up in 1869, what will be the case in such a respect only five years hence? While the City thoroughfares above Fourteenth-street are being cared for in the matter of ornament those below Union-square should be attended to, in order that the demands of transit for traffic be fully answered.

All improvements above Fourteenth-street must be made under authority of the Legislature, if they alter the map or plan of the City, and upon assemblage of the next Legislature the Mayor will ask your cooperation respecting several applications to that body for many improvements within Albany control. But the Common Council have absolute control over those to be initiated and perfected below Fourteenth-street.

We cannot longer afford to laugh at our short-sighted ancestors, who built the back part of the City Hall of red sandstone, because the City proper lay below Chambers-street, because we have been for many years, with our best foresight, committing similar blunders, and the laugh may be turned on us within three years. Have not municipal authorities legislated, and rather for a Present than the Future, upon the data of the Past? Has not too much regard been paid to the clamor of tax-paying cliques, or of some rich men who have cared more to amass family wealth than to invite metropolitan grandeur? Certainly in this industrial age, when all the forces of nature are being subdued to contribute to individual prosperity and enjoyment, public men should not forget to plan and legislate for the future. What we have suffered from the short-sighted policy of predecessors should not be entailed upon our successors.

Marvelously as the City has grown, it must necessarily grow yet more marvelously. Many persons of approved foresight believe that there are now living comparatively old men who, before they die, will see the area of the metropolis below the lower boundary of Central Park substantially surrendered to purposes of commerce, manufacture and trade. Certainly the enterprise of capitalists connected with associations, such as the Westside and Eastside Associations, have been in lucky contrast with the attachment to primitive notions about City property that have actuated some coteries of rich men who happened to invest their money below Fourteenth-street, and have been unwilling to be taxed for improvement of the lower portions of the City.

The subject is a fruitful one for rhetoric. But our constituents demand action. The Mayor, however, begs to submit in schedule F extracts from a recent privately-distributed pamphlet on the growth of New-York, which quite as practically as eloquently refers to New-York's future.

Let us, therefore, at once (within our own exclusive jurisdiction, and by way of commencing action) prosecute the following improvements, which, being evidently for the interest of the whole City, would be embraced by the new assessment law.

The extension of Fifth-avenue to Canal-street; the extension of Hudson-street from its intersection with Chambers-street, diagonally across blocks in Warren, Park-place and Barclay streets, until Church-street be reached; the opening of Ann-street, according to the map once adopted by the Common Council; the widening of Vesey-street to the Hudson River; the extension of Lafayette-place through to Marion and Prince-streets, and then the widening of Marion until it intersects Centre-street; the widening of Chatham-street from Tryon-row. (beginning about the spot where will spring the new Brooklyn bridge,) and extending to Chatham-square; the extension of Second-avenue from its termination at East Houston-street through to the corner of Bowery and Broome streets; the opening of a new avenue from the corner of Canal and Mulberry streets, across Mott, Bayard, Elizabeth and the Bowery, until it intersects Chatham-square; then reaching East Broadway it will call for a widening of Chatham-street, so thence-forward, where the market slip will be met close upon the East River; a widening of Franklin-street, from West-street, on the southerly side, to Broadway, and on the northerly side to Baxter-street, crossing the latter and Mulberry and Mott streets to Chatham-square, where it will connect with the widening of Chatham-street above mentioned; the extension of Sixth-avenue to Canal-street; the widening of the Broadway carriage road up to the present street front on each side, and the consequent arrangement of sidewalks within. In this last improvement it will be an easy matter for the second stories to be supported upon ornamental arches or pillars; and thus commensurately forcing inwardly the fronts of all lower stores; the removal of sidewalks, fences, chains and posts in and around the City Hall Park, and its conversion into a concreted plaza, suitable for vehicle transit, and so that Park-row, Broadway and the cross streets can be immediately relieved of their choking travel—the largest trees in the Park being preserved by surrounding them with curb-stones and iron boxes.

The Mayor also recommends that several feet of the sidewalk in Fulton-street which adjoins St. Paul's Church, and in other streets, be taken, and the full sidewalk on that particular block is sufficient for foot passengers, and the jam of wagons thereabouts is a daily nuisance. Also that the sidewalk, pavement and curbs around the Worth Monument be removed, so as to throw into the carriage-way the entire space which they now uselessly occupy; which would allow that Monument to sustain to Madison-square the same street situation that the Equestrian statue bears to Union-square.

Unquestionably the second problem, "how, toward night-fall, to afford two hundred thousand people an easy and rapid access to their homes from their places of toil and business," it would seem imperative that we should immediately seek to neutralize the attraction of the suburban magnets which have drawn away our population, and lost us so much taxation on personal estates. Long ere this we should have become able to say that New-York Island was thirty minutes, instead of twelve miles long.

The solution of the problem is primarily with the Legislature. It should be continually made to understand practically that this City demands constantly increasing railroad facilities between down-town and up-town.

One underground railway has already been authorized. But there should be at least three routes from one end of the Island to the other—one central and underground, and the other two either overground or underground, upon each side of the Island. There should be no preference for any particular plan. The plan which soonest promises to give immediate relief is the plan to be assisted by us. An elevated railway on arches across streets is also declined to be feasible, and the Assembly Committee on Railways reported favorably upon the project.

In this country every great scheme goes through three phases: the phase of talking and writing about it; the phase of quarreling about means and ways for it; and then the phase of perfecting it.

Upon all these problems of improvement and travel facility just referred to, our City has passed through the first, and is far advanced into the second phase.

The late President LINCOLN is said to have written to the present President, when the latter, as a General, was encamped around Richmond, "Arrange a plan, and then peg away at it until it is successful." In like spirit, let the City authorities patiently "peg away" upon this matter of City improvements. The solution of the two great problems so vital to the interests of commerce and the citizens' comfort.

SCHEDULE C.

The following statements show the condition of the Sinking Fund for the Redemption of the City Debt, the City and County Debt, &c.:

THE SINKING FUND FOR THE REDEMPTION OF THE CITY DEBT.

The capital of this fund, after providing for the Real Estate Bonds issued for payment to the State lessees of West Washington Market, in 18—:

Dec. 31, 1865, was	$15,893,511 29
The capital, Dec. 31, 1866, was	10,931,448 07
Increase in two years	$4,962,063 22

Revenues from Washington and West Washington Markets.

The Revenues from these markets during the year 1868, was	$253,167 70
The Revenues from these markets during the year 1866 was	112,491 02
Increase in 1868 over 1866	$140,676 68

CITY AND COUNTY DEBT.

The Funded Debt of the City, Dec. 31, 1868, was	$29,928,308 50
The Funded Debt of the County, Dec. 31, 1868, was	14,643,600 00
Total Funded Debt of City and County		$44,071,908 50
The Sinking Fund applicable to the Redemption of the City Debt, which by law is redeemable from that fund Dec. 31, 1868, was	$16,320,792 97
Bonds and Mortgages	1,506,020 97—	17,708,813 94
Net City and County Debt Dec. 31, 1868		$26,863,094 56

The accumulation of the Sinking Fund (as now provided by law) will prove sufficient for the entire redemption of the City Debt as it becomes due, without the necessity of raising a single dollar by taxation for that purpose.

The Temporary Debt of the City and County of New-York, Dec. 31, 1868, was: $7,618,572 30

The debt is redeemable from assessments for various public improvements, and from tax to be levied the present year.

It may not be inappropriate to give an estimate of the value of the property of the Corporation which is pledged for the redemption of the Funded Debt of the City. In the following estimate care has been taken to fix the price which the property designated would readily bring at public auction:

Wharves, piers, slips and market property	$15,000,000 00
Real estate not used for public purposes	750,000 00
Parks, property occupied by Fire Department, Board of Education and Metropolitan Police	40,000,000 00
Total	$55,750,000 00
To which may be added the value of the Croton Waterworks, say	35,000,000 00
Total	$90,750,000 00

It will thus be seen that the credit of the City rests upon an impregnable basis, and that the redemption of its funded debt is placed beyond the possibility of a doubt.

The Brooklyn Budget for 1870.

The annual meeting of the Joint Board of Aldermen and Supervisors of the City of Brooklyn to receive the Mayor's Budget of Expenses of the City Government for the year 1870, was held yesterday, Mayor KALBFLEISCH presiding. The Mayor read his message.

AMOUNT OF TAXES.

The whole amount necessary to be raised by tax for the ensuing year exceeds four millions of dollars, an increase of nearly one hundred and forty-four thousand dollars over last year—more than 27 per cent.—whereas the increase in the amount of taxable property does not exceed four per cent. per annum. Of this large increase in city expenses, $300,000 are for interest, maintenance, &c., for the parks in excess of what was raised last year for the same purpose; and $150,000 additional appropriated by law for the expenses of the Fire Department.

There is an increase in the revenue account of about $80,000 in excess of the amount received from this source last year. This is not so much owing to an increase in the receipts, as to the fact that fewer drafts have been made upon that fund.

It will require $75,600 more than was asked for last year for the support of common schools. The expenditures for this purpose have increased, as compared with the amounts asked for in former years, in a much greater ratio than the increase in population, or in the amount of taxable property, would seem to warrant. If however, the money raised is judiciously expended, our citizens will cheerfully submit to be taxed for so useful a purpose—but if the reports of the recent proceedings of the Board of Education are to be relied upon, this may be the case to a greater or less extent. Proper care and economy, it would seem, have not always been observed by that body in the administration of the affairs intrusted to them. Recent developments, it is hoped, will result in affording a remedy for this state of things.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During several years, the cost of maintaining the Fire Department was less than $50,000 per annum. Attempts to increase the amount were met by the passage of a law limiting the whole amount of expenditures, salaries, &c., included, to $50,000. Two years thereafter another law was passed, increasing the amount by making it $50,000, exclusive of salaries, which latter amounted to $40,000. In 1868 an additional $50,000 were added by law for general expenses, and before the provisions of the latter law, viz., that of making a fair distribution of the money raised between the different companies for their maintenance—was tried at all, another law is passed, in 1869, increasing the annual appropriation hereafter to $250,000, and authorizing the issue of certificates of indebtedness to be paid out of the funds raised for next year, for deficiencies between the amount raised for 1869 and the appropriation made by the recent act. The actual amount of money which will have to be provided for and put in the next tax list for Fire Department purposes will be $360,986 17. Notwithstanding the rapid and frequent increase in expenditures, the Department as yet is but little if any more efficient than formerly, and it is doubtful whether the change now contemplated will not be as unsatisfactory as the former changes.

THE PARKS.

Our Parks figure largely in the list of expenditures. When it is remembered that in 1860 it was estimated by the Commissioners and provided by law that the whole cost of Prospect Park would not exceed $430,000 for improvement, and that the law of 1861 provided that "no plan should be adopted by the Commissioners of which the entire expense should exceed $500,000," it will cause no astonishment to find that for interest alone on the Park debt, we are already called upon to raise $578,300 for one year, which sum will be increased annually for some years to come! Aside from this large amount for interest, we are now called upon to raise $84,450 for maintenance of Parks, and $79,685 additional for improving Washington Park, making a total amount of $742,000 for current expenses for one year, and without decreasing the debt incurred by the issue of bonds, one single dollar, or in a sum more than was ever before raised by tax only ten years ago, to pay for gas, maintain the Police, repairing and cleaning streets, salaries of public officers, and all other City expenses whatever. Independent of this there are still about a half million of dollars of bonds authorized by law to be issued. Did this finish it, and was it the end of the bonds to be issued for the purpose, we might endeavor to annually provide for the large amount of interest, and make some provision for the ultimate extinguishment of the debt. But it will cost millions of dollars more before the Park is completed, and although the expense is not by issuing bonds, and the time of payment spread over years, the interest on this debt may prove eventually very burdensome to the tax-paying community. It may be questioned whether a tax of one per cent. to our general taxes, or, in other words, if our taxes are four per cent., they would only be three and one-half per cent. without. It will be an easy matter for our tax-payers to estimate what it cost them annually for Park purposes.

Faith is expressed in the operations of the Water and Sewerage Board, and its plans in regard to repairs of streets and crosswalks are commended.

The following is a list of the items of the budget as estimated:

Statement No. 1, Principal of City debt	$199,650 00

The day's business at the office of the United States Assistant Treasurer was as follows: Total receipts, $1,151,179; total payments, $749,606 97; balance, $79,979,882 37. The receipts include, for Customs, $339,000; for Gold Notes, $242,000.

It is probable that Mr. VANDERBILT, President of the New-York Central Company, will convene his Directors on Tuesday or Wednesday of the present week, for the purpose of capitalizing the Interest Certificates, (80 ₱ cent. of the old Central,) at an early day, subject to the approval of two-thirds in interest of the Stockholders. This arrangement being perfected, each 100 shares of the present Capital will be entitled to 80 shares additional, and also to 4 ₱ cent. half-yearly dividend on the 180 shares payable in August, the cash for which is already in the Treasury of the Company. The further authority granted by the Legislature to consolidate the New-York Central with the Hudson River Road will probably be acted upon at a later, but no distant day in the present Summer. Should the combined Capital of the two properties be made $100,000,000, less the bonds outstanding against each corporation, (to be gradually paid off by their respective Sinking Funds, or capitalized in advance of their maturity,) the extra dividend of Consolidated Stock would be about as follows:

New-York Central old Stock	$20,000,000
80 ₱ cent. Certificates	23,200,000
20 ₱ cent. Consolidated Stock	5,800,000
Total Stock	$56,000,000
Debt, chiefly 6 ₱ cents	11,000,000
Canadaigua Lease, 6 ₱ cent	3,000,000
Total	$70,000,000
Hudson River Stock	$16,180,000
85½ ₱ cent. Consolidated Stock	5,960,000
Bonds of the Company	4,000,000
Total	$26,000,000

It is possible, from the present large and constantly increasing earnings of the two Roads and the increased economy with which they can be operated as one corporation, that Mr. VANDERBILT is confident of his ability to earn 8 ₱ cent. a year, free of Government tax, on $100,000,000 capital, and the Interest and Sinking Funds, (the latter to extinguish,) the outstanding Bonds of the Company. This would require about $22,000,000 Consolidated earnings ₱ annum a sum not far, either way, from the sum which will be earned in the next Railway year, beginning Oct. 1, 1869.

The amount of Stocks issued by the City of New-York is as follows:

For Croton water	$11,280,800
Central Park	10,048,571
Together	$21,329,371
Less in Sinking Funds	16,221,783
Unprovided for	$5,107,588
For other objects	13,401,710
Outstanding	$18,509,298
New-York County Debt	15,000,000
Total Outstanding	$33,102,998
Annual Revenues, 1868	28,096,368

The City and County own the Croton Water Works, Central Park, City Hall Park and Buildings, (including the New Court-house,) the Markets, and various other Real properties and franchises, which, if capitalized, as values now go, would amount to over two hundred millions of dollars. To this vast sum the outstanding debt of the City and County bears the relation of about 21½ ₱ cent. The most striking point in the above statement is that the annual revenues of the City and County are nearly equal to the entire outstanding principal of their combined debt. These revenues, $28,696,368 a year, honestly administered, and the expenses of the Municipal and County Government reasonably reduced to $14,000,000 a year, would pay off the debt in less than three years.

Ample material for another series of libel suits in London, in place of New-York, by GOULD, FISK, Jr., and LANE, is afforded by the London papers. The London Times, especially, compares the course of the Erie wreckers with that of the "vilest recognized brigands !" If this be not cause for "enormous damages," where there is real ability to pay $1,300,000, then we submit that the various writs of summons rendered against the Money writer of this paper, —who, we are sorry to say, cannot conveniently pay this little bill—ought to be forthwith dismissed. It is possible, however, that the legal member of the triumvirate, who suddenly sailed for Europe a few days ago, goes out with instructions to supplement their New-York suits, against our London namesake, beginning with the Money writer, Mr. SAMPSON.

Messrs. JAY COOKE & Co. are the Bankers for the Brooklyn City Loans, and are now offering the Prospect Park 7 ₱ cent. Bonds, 48 years to run, at 100½ and accumulated interest.

The Produce Exchange held its annual election of officers to-day. The canvass was unusually spirited, as there were three tickets presented—a regular, an independent and a people's ticket. The Board finally chosen was as follows:

President, Stephen D. Harrison; Vice-President, William H. Newman; Treasurer, Benj. C. Bogert; Managers, Danl. A. Eldridge, Robert S. Holt, William Blanchard, Jacob H. Herrick, Archibald Baxter, Edgar Hyatt, Jno. H. Boynton, Richard H. Leimbeer, Consider Parish, Madison M. Caleb, Gilbert Oakley, Alex. E. Orr; Inspectors of Election, Alfred Romer, Josiah Penfield, Theo. I. Husted.

Mr. HARRISON, who is of the firm of Messrs. JEWELL & HARRISON, Provision Merchants, takes the place of Colonel EDWARD HINCKEN, of the shipping house of Messrs. BOYD & HINCKEN, who, during his term as President, has acquitted himself most acceptably. Mr. BOGERT, as Treasurer, has been continued in office for nearly nine years, an unmistakable recognition of his efficiency and uprightness. Mr. WM. H. NEWMAN, the newly-elected Vice-President, is one of the oldest merchants connected with the produce trade of the port, and a very popular gentleman.

The Kansas Pacific Railway Company's earnings for the month of April were:

Merchandise and passenger traffic	$177,116 77
Government transportation	40,797 72
Total	$217,914 49
Operating expenses	93,291 61
Net earnings	$124,622 88

FLOUR AND MEAL—A less active inquiry prevails for State and Western Flour at drooping prices. Some export purchases of low grade Extra Western have been noted at $5 50@5 ₱ bbl., amounting in all to 1,500 bbls. Sales have been reported since our last of 8,100 bbls., in lots, including very inferior to choice Superfine State and Western at $4 85@5 35, very inferior to good Extra State at $5 40@5 20; good to choice genuine Spring Wheat Extra State at $5 20@5 50, and poor to good shipping brands of round-hoop Extra Ohio at $5 90@6 30 ₱ bbl. We quote:

Superfine State and Western	$4 85@5 35
Extra State	5 80@ 6 50
Extra Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, &c.	5 75@ 9 25
Extra Ohio, round-hoop, shipping brands	5 90@ 6 30
Extra Ohio, trade and family brands	6 35@ 9 50
Extra Genesee	6 50@ 9 50
Common to Fancy to Extra Missouri	6 65@12 50

Southern Flour has been in very moderate demand at declining prices; sales have been reported since our last of 500 bbls., at $6 25@6 85 for very poor to fair ordinary, and $6 85@13 for fair ordinary to very superior Extra ₱ bbl. California Flour has been in light request at $6 50@9 75 for Extras, ₱ 196 lbs.; sales, 400 bbls. and sacks. Rye Flour has been in less demand at $4 30@6 50 for very inferior to very choice, ₱ bbl.; sales, 200 bbls. Cornmeal is in slack demand at $4@$4 50 for Western, $4 15@$4 30 for Jersey, and $4 65 for Brandywine, ₱ bbl.; sales, 175 bbls.

GRAIN—Spring Wheat has been moderately active and quoted up about 1c. a bushel. Exporters have made most of the purchases. Winter Wheat has been dull at about former rates. Sales have been reported since our last, of 111,000 bushels, including White Western at $1 60@2 10, the latter for a fancy lot; Red and Amber do. at $1 43@1 57½; No. 1 Spring at $1 46@1 48, delivered; No. 2 Spring at $1 41@1 43, delivered, part to arrive; No. 3 do. at $1 36; Nos. 2 and 3 Spring mixed at $1 39; White California at $1 70 ₱ bushel. Corn has been in fair demand, mainly for home use, at decidedly firmer prices, particularly for New Mixed. Sales have been reported since our last of 59,000 bushels at 85c.@77c. for damaged New Mixed Western, received by canal; 78c.@87c. for heated to choice New Mixed Western, by canal; 86c.@90c. for New Mixed Western, received by rail, the latter for very choice; 95c.@96c. for Old Mixed Western, in store, delivered; 90c.@95c. for White and Yellow Western, and 83c.@86c. for Kiln-dried, ₱ bushel. Rye, Barley and Barley Malt dull and irregular. Oats have been in good demand, and quoted firmer, on limited offerings; sales have been reported since our last of 47,000 bushels Western at 80c.@ 81c., closing at 81c. afloat, per bushel. The export clearances include 3,450 bbls. Flour, and 21,917 bushels Wheat for London, 21,647 bushels Wheat for Bristol, 37,846 bushels Wheat for Cork and orders. The Albany Argus says: "The boats which passed Fultonville between noon on Thursday and noon on Saturday covered 46 loads of Lumber, 15 each of Wheat and Coal; 6 of Staves, 4 of Corn, 2 of Oats, and 1 each of Flour, Salt, Stone, Lime, Rye, and Iron Ore.

NAVAL STORES.—These has been scarcely anything done in this line worth mentioning. Prices, in most instances, have been quoted steady, but only nominally so, as buyers have been unwilling to operate freely at asking rates. For Spirits Turpentine there has been a light demand at equal to 45c.@45½c. ₱ gallon, for merchantable, and about 170 bbls. have been jobbed out at these figures. Receipts, 160 bbls. Nothing new in Crude Turpentine. Tar has been in very slack request, and only 200 bbls. Newbern have been reported sold "at from $2 50 for small (24 gallon) barrels to $3 for provision barrels. In Rosin there have been some job lots of strained placed at $2 40; No. 2 at $2 75@2 90; No. 1 at $4 75@$5 ₱ 280 lbs., in all about 1,050 bbls. The receipts of Rosin have been 1,360 bbls. No clearances. We quote Spirits Turpentine at 45c.@47c., chiefly at 46½c. for merchantable, ₱ gallon; Crude at $4@$4 25; Resin at $2 40@$11 50 ₱ 280 lbs., the latter rate for choice White; Tar at $2 50 @$3 25; Pitch at $2 75@$3 ₱ bbl.

OILS—Have been in limited request since our last, including (Crude Whale at $1 02@$1 05; Bleached Whale at $1 15; Crude Sperm at $1 98@2; Unbleached Sperm at $2@2 05; Lard Oil at $1 45@ $1 47½; Red Oil at 90c.@95c.; Linseed Oil chiefly at $1 06@$1 08, in casks and barrels; Olive at $1 45@ $1 50 ₱ gallon.

PETROLEUM—The speculative dealings to-day have been on an unusually extensive scale, accompanied by a sharprise, and a severe reaction in prices. The opening prices were on the basis of the highest figures—stimulated by telegraphic dispatches from the oil producing districts, reporting that there had been a falling off in the average daily yield of the wells that have been pretty generally flowed, by the past 5 weeks' operations at advancing prices, and the forenoon's activity and buoyancy were followed, in the afternoon, by a decided pressure to sell, partly on speculative account, which led to a material decline from the morning rates, and in some instances to figures even below the closing quotations of Saturday. The bulk of the offerings were placed at the widely-fluctuating prices before the late afternoon, when there was a slight rally in the market from the lowest point touched, the general trade closing rather steadier, though with but little show of animation, after a day of extraordinary excitement. For Crude in bulk the range was from 19c. down to 16¾c., closing at about 17c. bid and 18c. asked, with sales for immediate and forward delivery, reported to the extent of 8,500 bbls. Barreled Crude ranged from 24½c. back to 21½c., and closed at about 23c.@23¼c. as the rates at which some lots were available, though sellers were very willing to name prices at which they would sell, nor were buyers seemingly inclined to purchase at the quoted figures. We heard of sales of some 3,500 bbls. within the extreme quotations. No receipts of Crude were acknowledged here; at Philadelphia, 500 bbls. arrived. No clearances were reported to-day. Refined fluctuated between 34½c. as the highest, and 31½c. as the lowest point touched, closing at 32c. ₱ gallon, and closed at about 32c. ₱ gallon, which was slightly off the final prices of Saturday. Most of the purchases to-day were made by speculative buyers. Exporters were out of the market as purchasers. Many of them were sellers of oil, or of oil contracts, bought at the low figures of the past week, and disposed of to-day at a handsome profit. The receipts of Refined here to-day were 2,450 bbls.; at Philadelphia, 1,050 bbls. Sales and resales have been reported here of 40,500 bbls., including 1,500 bbls. Prime Light Straw to White at 30c.; 1,500 bbls. Standard White, seller and buyer June, various deliveries within the month, at from 34½c. down to 31½c., leaving off at about 32c.; 8,500 bbls. do., July, various deliveries, at from 33½c. down to 31½c., leaving off at about 32c.; 6,500 bbls. do., August, various deliveries, at from 32c.@33½c., closing at about 32c.@32½c.; 2,500 bbls. do., September delivery, at 32c.@33½c., closing at about 32½c.@33c.; 1,000 bbls. do., October delivery, (500 bbls. each month,) on private terms, closing at about 33½c. ₱ gallon. Also, at Philadelphia, 15,000 bbls., including 6,000 bbls. Standard White, June, various deliveries within the month, at from 31½c.@33½c., closing at about 31¾c.@32c.; 2,500 bbls. do., July, at 32¼c.@33½c.; 1,500 bbls. do., August, at 33½c.@34c.; 2,000 bbls. do., July and August, (1,000 bbls. each month,) at 33c., and 1,500 bbls. do., June, July and August, (500 bbls. each month,) 33¾c., ₱ gallon. There were no export clearances hence reported to-day.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been in more demand and firmer in price. Sales have been reported since our last of 1,400 bbls., in lots, at $31 37½@31 65, closing at about $31 62½@31 65 for New Mess, $31 25@31 50 for Mess, $30 @$31 25 for Thin Mess, $28 25@28 37½ for Prime Mess, $34 50 for Clear, $35 50 for Sheer Clear, and $25@26 for Prime and Extra Prime ₱ bbl. Also 500 bbls. New Mess, seller June, at $31 50 ₱ bbl. Cut Meats continue in moderate request at full rates. Sales have been reported of 225 packages, at 12¼c.@ 13c. for Dry-salted and Sweet-pickled Shoulders, and 16c.@17c. for Hams. Green Meats are quiet. Bacon is in moderate demand at steady prices; sales 250 boxes, including Long Ribs, at from 16¼c., and Long Clear on private terms, ₱ lb. NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The threatened action of the House of Lords on the Irish Church Disestablishment bill causes intense excitement in London, and brings out extended comments by the Press. Mr. GLADSTONE, it is intimated, proposes to prorogue Parliament.

CUBA.

A dispatch received by the editor of El Cronista, in this City, yesterday, states that more than 4,000 insurgents have surrendered to VALMASEDA and other Spanish Generals, and that quiet prevails and order is secured in Havana. Mail news is dated June 2. Our correspondent, in a letter printed elsewhere, supplies the fullest particulars of the expulsion, rather than the resignation, of DULCE, and gives a lucid summary of the state of affairs up to the day of the steamer's departure.

GENERAL.

Advices from Mexico to the first instant are received by way of Havana. General ROSECRANS has publicly denied that he has asked permission to stay in Mexico until the perfection of his policy. The mission of Consul BRINKS, to Washington, was exciting general discussion; all parties were opposed to the selling of more land to the United States, but there were many favorable to a protectorate. IGNACIO MARISCAL has been appointed Minister to the United States.

The United States Depository safe at Santa Fe, New-Mexico, was robbed of several hundred thousand dollars on Saturday night. T. L. COLLINS, a depositor, was found lying in the room by the safe dead, shot through the heart. It is supposed that he was killed by the robbers while attempting to save the treasure.

The work of building the Denver Pacific Railroad is to be carried through without delay. General EVANS is coming East to complete a contract with the Union Pacific Railroad Company for laying out and equipping the road to Omaha.

The report that the Custom-house at Puerto Plata was destroyed by fire on the 26th is denied by late advices from St. Domingo. Two large stores adjoining were burned, and the walls of the Custom-house only blackened. A number of Dominicans have gone to join the forces of the insurgents in Cuba, and many more are preparing to go; and the hope that the Cubans will be victorious in the revolution is freely expressed on all sides.

At the annual meeting of the Amherst College Alumni Association of Boston and vicinity, to be held in Boston to-morrow evening, preparations will be made for the semi-centennial celebration.

The President has made inquiry into the reports of abuse of the Indians and natives of Alaska, and of a lack of discipline among a portion of the troops, and has decided to remove the commanding officer.

The Glen House at the White Mountains opens on the 16th.

The Chief of Police of Boston has given orders to the Police of the city to arrest and make complaints against, during Jubilee week, all well-known thieves at once, when seen, whether in the act of robbery or not, under the authority of a State law.

The steamer Aries, of the Boston and Philadelphia line of packets, which was wrecked on the Jersey coast, in Cranberry Inlet, on Saturday morning, left Boston on Wednesday. When off Chatham she came into collision with a coasting schooner, named Victory, which was so badly injured that the services of the steamer were required to enable her to reach a port for repairs. Had the Aries not been thus detained, she doubtless would have been far beyond Cranberry Inlet on Saturday.

On Sunday next a new Catholic Church edifice, (St. Augustine's,) at Bridgeport, Conn., will be dedicated. The building and ground cost $175,000, and the church is said to be one of the finest in the State.

The last number of the Cretan has been published in Boston, as the Cretans have given up the contest, and thus its mission is ended.

The Vermont State Council of Censors, which has just closed its first session at Montpelier, has appointed a special committee to consider the expediency of abolishing the Censors altogether, and finding some more democratic manner of amending the Constitution, and then to consider female suffrage; to talk up the mode of electing Supreme Court Judges, and to decide as to the constitutionality of the acts for bonding towns in aid of railroad corporations. A call for a Constitutional Convention will probably be issued early in October.

The four-oared boat in which the Harvard crew will row their international races, arrived from Greenpoint, L. I., on Saturday. It is a cedar shell, fifty-two feet long, eighteen inches wide amidships, and three inches deep.

The New-England Associated Press was organized on Saturday. Articles of association were adopted, and the following Executive Committee elected: J. R. HAWLEY, of the Hartford Courant, President; R. M. PULSIFER, of the Boston Herald, Secretary and Treasurer; S. N. STOCKWELL, of the Boston Journal, SAMUEL BOWLES, of the Springfield Republican, and R. WORTHINGTON, of the Boston Traveller, Directors.

Mr. JAMES M. MURDOCK, a wealthy retired merchant of Boston, residing in Brighton, Mass., was thrown from his carriage on Sunday evening, while driving through the western part of Boston, and killed. His sister, Mrs. B. L. WILDER, and housekeeper, Mrs. SALARD, and a young nephew, who were in the carriage with him, were considerably bruised. Unmanageable horses caused the accident.

A meeting was held last evening in the Washington-square Methodist Episcopal Church, for the purpose of discussing the question of lay representation. The vote has not yet been taken in this church.

The German Workingmen's Festival, for the benefit of the Arbeiter Union newspaper, began last evening with a concert and addresses, at the Germania Rooms. Wm. SYLVIS, CONRAD KUHN, and Dr. ADOLF DOUAI, spoke. To-day the various German trade societies of this City and suburbs will proceed to Jones' Wood, where a concert, speech-making, singing, and dancing will fill up the day and evening.

The steamer City of Port-au-Prince, Captain JACKSON, which sailed from this port, on Saturday last, for Port-au-Prince, had on board 100 tons of shell and a large quantity of powder for the Salnave Government in Hayti.

Both Boards of the Common Council met yesterday. The Mayor's annual message was read, referred to the appropriate Committees and ordered to be printed.

The Seventh Regiment N. G. S. N. Y., Colonel EMMONS CLARK, had a field day at the parade ground in Prospect Park yesterday. A great many spectators were present, and everything passed off pleasantly.

Mr. JUSTIN MCCARTHY, editor of the London Morning Star, lectured at Cooper Institute last evening on "England and the Alabama."

Swords were presented last night by Company F, Twenty-second Regiment, to Captain GEORGE CLAN RANALD, the Commander, and First Lieutenant EDWARD BUSSELL.

Trade in beef cattle continues fairly active at former quotations. Most of the sales are made at about 14c.@15c. ₱ lb., net weight. Small lots of selected cattle of a superior quality were sold yesterday at 15½c.@16c., with now and then an extra fed bullock at 16¼c.@16½c. ₱ lb. About 70 Western calves were sold at West Forty-eighth-street sheep-yards for 9¾c. ₱ lb., live weight. Prime milk-fattened calves are worth 11c.@12½c. ₱ lb. At some of the yards trade in sheep was more active than last week. A few of the best sheep were sold at 8c.@9½c. ₱ lb., live weight. Fair sheared sheep, 6c.@7c. ₱ lb. Common lots 5c.@5½c. Inferior sheep 4c. ₱ lb. At the hog market, West Fortieth-street, the receipts for the week number 13,672. No hogs were sold alive yesterday at that market. All were taken to the slaughter-house. Corn-fed dressed are quotable at 11c.@11¼c., with selected lots at 11¼c. ₱ lb. Live are nominal at about 9c.@9¾c. ₱ lb. gross weight.

Mayor Hall's Message.

Neither the disclaimer that it contains nothing new, nor the fact that certain trivial and uncalled for criticisms of other branches of the Metropolitan Government are largely indulged in, will deter our citizens from reading Mayor HALL'S first message on municipal affairs. It is an exceedingly graceful document—pleasant light reading, in fact, compared with the usual ponderous and heavy messages of former Mayors; and it contains many facts of interest, and many suggestions and recommendations of importance, worthy of the serious thought of all active citizens.

The sum of $4,153,000 75 will have to be raised by taxation for the purpose of carrying on the City Government for the current year; and a further sum of $1,302,498 48 is needed to conduct the affairs of the county properly—a total for City and county purposes of nearly five and a half millions of dollars. This estimate is highly encouraging compared with that of 1868, when the percentage of taxation to the assessed value of real and personal estate in the City was 2.69; whereas for this year it is only 1.96. The value of the real and personal estate of the City is assessed for the present year at $1,000,000,000—an increase of $10,000,000 over the assessment of last year, and something above the average percentage increase for many years past.

The markets are treated at length by the Mayor—the statement of General VIELE, published by us in February last, being incorporated in the document as an argument in favor of their sale or repair. Mayor HALL recommends the sale of Gouverneur and Franklin Markets, and the rebuilding of Washington, Fulton and Clinton Markets.

The pavement and sewerage questions are also treated at length. The Mayor, in alluding to the subject, recommends that the lately adopted law which provides that half the expense of any improvement, beneficial alike to City and property owners, shall be applied also to the building of sewers and pavements, and he urges that steps be taken by the Council to have the law thus extended in such a way that the tax shall fall in part on property owners years hence. The Mayor condemns the Nicholson pavement as unsuitable for other than side streets, and strongly recommends the Fiak concrete pavement, citing instances from abroad and at home of its durableness and general superiority.

We are glad to perceive that a vigorous attack is made upon the gas monopolies which furnish at exorbitant rates our present insufficient street lights. The Mayor proposes an immediate remedy in the adoption by the City authorities of a much larger burner which will give a brighter light. A possible emancipation from the tyranny of the gas monopolists is suggested by the adoption, at a future time, of the newly discovered oxygen gas, which the Mayor declares can be furnished at cheaper rates than the present lights, and with power and brilliancy sufficient to make the streets at night as light as in the day time, with the additional desirable effect of displaying all objects in their true colors as seen in the sunlight. He also states that this gas is now being manufactured for sale quite extensively in this City by private gentlemen.

The extension and widening of the streets of the lower part of the City is enlarged upon by Mayor HALL, as it has been by every Mayor for the last decade. The most important of the present incumbent's recommendations is that for the widening of lower Broadway by extending the roadway on either side to the house fronts—in other words doing away with the present sidewalks, and requiring the devotion of the front of the first stories of all houses on Broadway for new arched and covered sidewalks. This plan has been urged before, but never officially. It is not without its great merits and grave disadvantages, but it is one which deserves thorough examination. Among minor but sensible recommendations is one for the removal of the sidewalks around the Worth monument. We cannot fully commend, however, a similar recommendation to extend the pavement of Broadway to the railing in front of St. Paul's Church, thus removing the sidewalks altogether at that point. The only effect we can anticipate would be the obstruction of foot travel on the west side of Broadway.

The Irish Church Bill and the House of Lords.

The Tory Peers have taken time by the forelock, and decided in solemn assembly upon their course of action when the Irish Church bill comes up for its second reading in their Chamber. And contrary to what seems to have been the general expectation in England, they have resolved to reject it. Although party lines are not so sharply defined in the Lords as they are in the Commons, the Tories may be said, roughly speaking, to possess a majority of one hundred in the Upper House, and the estimate that they will be able to throw out the bill by a majority of eighty, is probably correct. The proposal to meet the bill by a direct motion for its rejection emanated from Ex-Lord Chancellor CAIRNS, the able statesman, acute lawyer, brilliant orater and strong Ulster Protestant, who is now the recognized leader of the Tory Peers. It was supported by Lord DERBY, who has been at the head of three Tory Administrations, and who, although he has now formally abdicated his positiion as chief of the party, still exercises great influence in its councils. The opposition to the course proposed by the leaders proceeded from the Marquis of SALISBURY and the Earl of CARNARVON—the former one of the ablest, most business-like and far-seeing of English statesmen, but separated from the chiefs of his party by a good deal of personal animosity, and the latter a "Liberal Conservative," who some time ago renounced his allegiance to Lord DERBY, and has since all but taken his place in the Liberal ranks. Neither of these two Peers, however, have any following, and it may be assumed as a certainty, after the declarations of Lords DERBY and CAIRNS, that the Tory Peers will vote en masse for the rejection of a bill which the House of Commons has passed by a majority almost unprecedented in the history of party divisions.

It is not easy as yet to form an estimate of the probable consequence of this most important step on the part of the majority in the Upper House, or even to appreciate the reasons which have led their Tory lordships to adopt so decided and so dangerous a course. It seems to have been generally supposed that the Tories had given up the battle as lost, that their leaders in the Upper House shrank from placing their Chamber in conflict with the Commons on a question on which the latter had pronounced so decisive a verdict, and that the system—unsuccessfully advocated by Lords SALISBURY and CARNARVON—of endeavoring to make the best terms they could for the doomed Establishment would be that adopted by the party. But the Tory leaders have determined otherwise, and upon them rests the responsibility of having thrown down a challenge to a contest which may result in the total subversion of the existing systems of government in Great Britain, and which, in any case will be the most important and exciting of recent times in England, the struggles for Catholic emancipation, the first Reform bill and the repeal of the Corn Laws not excepted.

The Tory Peers may possibly rely on the failure of the measure to conciliate Ireland, on the intense Protestant feeling which its passage has evoked in Ulster, or on certain possible divisions among their opponents, but it is impossible that they can be blind to the nature of the challenge for which they have made themselves responsible, Lord DERBY, indeed, went so far as to say that "personal fears" ought to have no weight in influencing the course of the Upper House—thereby meaning, plainly enough, that the Peers were bound to reject a bill which they could not conscientiously approve, even if the abolition of their hereditary legislative priviliges were to follow. And as far as we can see at present, that is the most probable issue of the approaching conflict. If Lord DERBY and his friends persist in this resolution, there will be a fierce struggle—all the Conservatives in the Kingdom will exert their utmost energy in defence of the privileges of the Upper House, and many of the more moderate Liberals will shrink from assailing them. The stake for which the Tories are now playing is a gigantic one, and should the struggle end, as it bids fair to do—in the abolition of the House of Lords, the recent meeting of Tory Peers will turn out to have marked one of the most important eras in English constitutional history.

Commercial Travelers.

The Society of Commercial Travelers have at last appealed to the public, in a formal address, against the restrictions which local business laws impose upon their honorable and useful calling. They declare, and, so far as we can see, with reason, that their cause is really that of freedom of commerce, and the personal liberty of citizens to exercise, without unnecessary hampering, a legitimate occupation. In that view, the only wonder is that such a plea needs to be put forth in our age and our country.

That, however, the plea is needed, is quite evident, not only from the State license laws on many statute books, but from the actual incarceration of many respectable gentlemen, commercial travelers by profession, for refusing to take out licenses under these laws. Of such cases the Society has records at command of some fifty; and in their earnest and emphatic address, prepared by Mr. M. M. HURD, of New-York, they say:

"The hardship we protest against is, that an honorable citizen, pursuing an honorable calling, may, for showing a novel texture, or explaining a new process or recent invention in some matter equally concerning the well-being and comfort of every citizen of our great Republic, rich or poor—for doing simply what we here state,—be thrown into a criminal's dungeon."

Our own reports confirm the correctness of the complaint here alluded to. A few months ago Mr. DRESHLER, of Newark, a commercial traveler, was imprisoned six weeks in the Baltimore City Jail for not taking out a license under the Peddler law of Maryland; soon after Mr. SEYMOUR, described as an "extensive hat and cap manufacturer, of New-York," was fined $50 and costs, and a Mr. STOCKER $100 and costs, for "selling by sample without licenso" in Cincinnati, and so violating the local "Drummer" law. In Mr. SEYMOUR'S case, the hardship the commercial travelers complain of was very well illustrated. He was an extensive merchant, and his only "samples" were the "hat he wore and one other he had with him." All the witnesses declared that he "never had solicited any orders, his visit being intended for general purposes, and they did not look upon him as an agent selling goods under sample." Mr. SEYMOUR himself said he was not aware of having violated any law, and certainly had no intention to do so. A local paper remarked that "the accused seems to be making a tour through the West for the purpose of looking after his business generally, and taking some orders incidentally." Yet he was fined roundly, the Judge "acquitting Mr. SEYMOUR of any intention to violate the law, yet explaining the necessity of its enforcement."

We have chosen this case simply in order to illustrate by a vivid and suggestive example how justly the commercial travelers complain that "such laws bind, stifle and prevent not only the operations of trade, but the very interchange of ideas and intelligence between two different sections of the same country." However, it is just to add that Cincinnati has, since this case, followed Chicago in abrogating its injurious ordinance. Baltimore, Pittsburg, Providence and other large cities, however, still have such restrictions in force.

The Multiplication of Insurance Companies.

The very able Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts, Mr. SANFORD, objects to the inadequacy of the steps hitherto taken by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and urges upon its members the necessity of immediate and more thorough reform in the practice of the companies. "For all the Board has done or promises to do," he remarks, "fire insurance will go blundering on for a century to come, as it has for a century past, hazarding millions of capital in a blind game of chance, rather than spend thousands to solve the laws on which it might repose with something of scientific certainty." The necessity of reform has been admitted by the Board. More than once its members have declared that the business of fire insurance in this City rests upon an insecure foundation, and that unless effective remedial measures be resorted to, there is danger of a terrible collapse. What the Board has done is good as far as it goes. In striking at extravagant rates of commission and the demoralizing system of brokerage which they have fostered, the Board undoubtedly contributed materially to the economy of management which is so greatly needed. Other changes are required, however, to arrest the frauds resulting from a reckless competition, and to place the whole business upon a sounder foundation. And the testimony of the Massachusetts Commissioner should not be without effect in shaping and stimulating the movement for reform which every solvent company must desire to see consummated.

Other motives to exertion may be found in the failure of fire insurance companies in neighboring cities. Two were last week reported from Philadelphia, and the journal from which we borrowed an account of their suspension stated that "another one is reported to be in a very unsatisfactory condition, while still another is said to be uncomfortably involved." One of the lessons derived by the local chronicler is, that "there is apparently an over-supply of insurance companies." A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette recently described an equally unhealthy state of things in that city. He did not report positive failure, but the facts he set forth indicated an imminent risk of failure, and generally the precarious condition of the local organizations relied upon to provide insurance against fire. There, as at Philadelphia, the judgment pronounced is, that there are too many companies; and we are convinced that this is everywhere the case. In Massachusetts and in this State the law provides a check upon unsoundness and mismanagement, though experience has proved that, practically, the authority exercised by an Insurance Commissioner is less efficacious than it might be in holding companies to a strict accountability both as to condition and management. This check, however, imperfect though it be, does not exist in other States, where no limit is placed to the growth of mushroom companies, and no really useful restraint is put upon their methods of acquiring or managing business.

It were comparatively fortunate if the perils incident to feeble organizations and injudicious or dishonest management were confined to fire insurance. Even in this connection they are sufficiently serious. But the collapse of fire insurance companies, bad as it is, is neither so formidable in its immediate hardships nor so far-reaching in its consequences as the failure of companies formed for the insurance of lives. Hence it is impossible to witness without anxiety the rapid multiplication of life insurance companies in the South and West, and the hazardous—because unscientific—manner in which many of them conduct their business. The latter is an evil inseparable from an excess of competition conducted in circumstances that are not regulated by any competent official authority. Nothing seems safer than to get up a company of this nature. Tables of rates are easily obtained, and with good names to advertise as directors, a start is made without much difficulty. Then come the temptations of an eager race for business. The well-established and prosperous companies of New-York, Newark, Boston and one or two other cities are in the field, offering all legitimate inducements. What can the new companies do except invent fanciful schemes, push life insurance in directions at variance with its real nature and design, parade promises which those familiar with the system know to be impossible of fulfilment, and obtain the aid of agents by rates of payment utterly incompatible with ultimate solvency? The result is, perhaps, a certain amount of temporary success. The public, knowing little of the conditions of permanent prosperity in life insurance, are deluded by fair promises and high-sounding terms. They jump at baits that are used only by folly or knavery, and link the fortunes of their families with enterprises lacking all the guarantees of enduring strength and usefulness. Instead, then, of hailing the appearance of the many local companies which have sprung up in remote localities as evidence of the spread of habits of thrift, we regard them as illustrative of evils that beset life insurance, and cast a cloud over its future.

The plea usually available in behalf of local institutions is in this instance inapplicable. A case may be made out in favor of local mutual organizations for fire insurance. The mutuality of knowledge concerning personal character, and the value of property and the risks attending it, and the strict economy of which local management is susceptible, are so many favorable conditions. But the case furnishes no analogy for guidance in relation to life insurance. There, a large area of operations is desirable to secure that full average of conditions in respect of climate, habits and pursuits, of temperaments and constitutions, which enters as an element into the calculation of risks. Some limitations as to distance are of course desirable. No company can afford to transact business beyond the range of easy observation; for temptations to fraud on the part of agents and the insured are counteracted only when the head office is enabled to exercise the most vigilant supervision. With these reservations, the advantages enjoyed by large life companies are unattainable by the local companies which a false State pride is calling into being. Assuming that the latter companies are creditable in their origin and honest in their management, they are obviously deficient in experience, and in the command of that scientific assistance which is essential to security. The actuarial profession is yet in its infancy in this country, its really competent members being confined to four or five Eastern cities; and the local Western and Southern companies, therefore, having no trustworthy actuarial guidance, are drifting on the sea of uncertainty like ships bereft of rudders. Local effort is well in its way, but it runs in a dangerous direction when striving to give to every town or county, or even every State, its own life insurance company.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Mall at Central Park is certainly very handsome this Spring; it is one of the chief glories of that delightful resort and of its Commissioners. But it sadly needs one great improvement—a striking want, as every nursery maid will tell the Commissioners. It wants a clock for the benefit of nurses and children who "take no note of time" even by its loss, and who require some constant monitor to warn them, these long days, of night's approach. A few rustic sun dials or clocks about the Mall and other places in the Park would be useful ornaments.

There ought to be special provision in law for the treatment of such rascals as "Funny-Nosed Bill," who has at last received six months' imprisonment for wallet-snatching, after having spent a life of burglaries and crimes for which he has always escaped punishment. Before the close of the year his term will be out, and he will again be in town, ready to resume his depredations upon society and laugh at the law. It is a mockery of justice that such a man should merely receive the slight penalty awarded for the petty offence which has now sent him to the Penitentiary. The law should be cognizant of the fact that this is his hundredth offence, and it should have a provision applicable to this fact. Why not send such fellows as "Funny-Nosed Bill" to the penal colony which it is proposed to establish on the Arctic ocean in our Dominion of Alaska?

The coal-dealers are desperate and reiterate with angry vehemence the tales of strikes and suspensions among the miners. These are tales which, like the cry of "wolf," have been so often repeated, that the public no longer scare at them. There is no need that the public should be frightened at the reports; they are simply for the purpose of sustaining prices by creating a demand. The miners will soon be forced to go to work again, and the Fall supply will be fully equal to the demand, if the Summer demand does not amount to an unnecessary panic. Keep cool, and buy little coal.

The Mexican papers which we receive from time to time furnish us rather gloomy reading. Their themes are always the same—the ruinous depression of trade, the degradation of the public credit, the prevalence of highway robberies and the menaces of anarchy, the folly of the Government, the corruption of public affairs, and the imbecility, indolence, depravity and misery of everybody.

It was not, as rumored, a desire to display his wit and humor, that induced Hon. A. OAKEY HALL to act as auctioneer in the sale of the railroad franchise at the City Hall the other day. On the contrary, it is said to have been remorse which prompted him. Conscience-troubled at the part taken by him in forcing the Tax Levy through the Legislature, he resolved, by acting as auctioneer, to save the City the two and one-half per cent. fee of the licensed auctioner—$150,000x2½ per cent., $3,750. Since the report that Mr. HALL has drawn this sum for his services is or ought to be untrue, it is just that it should be placed to his credit on the Tax Levy account; but we fear that on the broad ledger of Public Opinion there is still a balance against the Mayor.

An evening paper suggests that it was pretty hard in the subordinates of Sheriff O'BRIEN to saddle him with the expense of maintaining the costly outfit they presented him with the other day. But if the story be true that the poverty-stricken Sheriff himself had to foot the bills for the gift horses, gift carriage and gift gold-plated harness, then the cruelty of his generous subordinates was still more grievous.

The proposition for a "Fresh-Air Fund," which has been started by that truly good man, Rev. Dr. MUHLENBERG, for the purpose of procuring an occasional Summer excursion for the very poor people of the City, ought to be carried out. A few thousand dollars spent in this way—spent in procuring steamboats and barges that would carry a few hundred people daily out of their vile quarters to places where they could get a sight of green fields or a breath of the fresh sea-breeze—would not only be a sanitary but a humane and moral benefaction. There should be no difficulty, and no delay, in raising the necessary means.

The Professor GABB, who sprang into sudden notoriety a short time ago as the discoverer of immense gold fields in the Island of San Domingo, has now got ready to offer the "principal mining sites on lease" in this country. The Professor himself ought to come over here, and deliver lectures in the Gold Room on his discoveries.

The Prince of WALES has just made the best speech of his life. It was delivered immediately after his return from his Oriental travels, at a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society. His Royal Highness discoursed on the advantages of travel in a very sensible manner. He modestly alluded to the fact that he had combined philanthropy with adventure, and that he had aided his Highness the Viceroy of Egypt in his noble enterprise of putting down slavery on the White Nile. The Prince is evidently improving in wisdom and morals. He also gave a touch of his military and patriotic spirit, when in responding to the toast of the army, he said he "hoped that if we should be compelled to go to war—which God forbid—we shall be able to uphold our honor and the flag of our country as they have been maintained on all previous occasions." We must commend our royal friend. After all he may yet make a respectable King.

A very profound and wonderful reform has just been begun in Paris. The principal shops—including those of nearly all the linen-drapers, hosiers, silk mercers and vendors of ready-made apparel—will henceforth be closed on Sundays. The merchants have taken this step of their own accord, and their employes "appeal to the good-will of the public to aid them in making the measure general." When Paris enjoys a Christian Sabbath, there will be some prospect of its ceasing to be a heathen city.

At the recent meeting of property owners opposed to the job for widening Broadway, one of the speakers (Mr. BICKLEY) said that the assessors, one of whom is Governor HOFFMAN'S father-in-law, would get two and a half per cent. on the whole amount of damages assessed, $15,000,000; and thus the three assessors would divide $750,000. He also said that the assessor referred to pocketed $150,000 in the matter of the Church-street extension. Would it not be well for Governor HOFFMAN to make special inquiry into this business, if he has not already done so?

In a book by Dr. HARLEY, just published in London, there is some curious information in regard to hemlock. He has found that preparations from the dried plant or fruit are quite inert, but that the fresh plant and preparations from the unripe fruit are potent poisons; and he considers hemlock valuable as a remedial agent in a variety of nervous diseases. He is of opinion that it was the spotted hemlock with which SOCRATES and PHOCION were killed.

We are sorry to see that the military budget of Austria gives an estimate of army expenditures five millions of florins in excess of last year's expenditure. We suppose that Austria must keep up her rank as a first-class military Power; but this addition to the already heavy burden of taxation will damage the Liberal Government of VON BEUST and weaken the country more than the enlarged army will strengthen it.

We are sorry to see that the journeymen printers, who, when on "strike" some months ago, attempted to establish a coöperative printing office, and raised subscriptions among themselves for the purpose, have broken down before the business was started. There is no better business than printing for the trial of coöperation, and the fact that one establishment on that principle has been successful ought to be an encouragement to others. No very great capital is required to begin with, and there is always work to be had which brings prompt payment. The printers, too, are an unusually intelligent class of men, and ought to be able to carry on business, upon the coöperative method, on profitable principles. We hope other trials may be made, and that they will succeed.

Who the Post Quartermaster at Nacogdoches may be, we do not know; but he is evidently an officer accustomed to wait for orders and to obey them—not one of those impulsive soldiers who rush into wild schemes on their own responsibility. At least, so we conjecture from the following printed order:

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
STATE OF TEXAS,
AUSTIN, Texas, May 24, 1869.

SPECIAL ORDERS No. 122.— * * * II. Paragraph 2, Special Orders No. 40, current series, Post of Nacogdoches, directing the Post Quartermaster at Nacogdoches to purchase, in open market, six (6) brooms, for use at that Post, is hereby confirmed.

By order of
Brevet Major-General J. J. REYNOLDS.
C. E. MORSE, A. A. A. G.

That is what it takes in the army to get half a dozen brooms,—first an order from the Post Commandant, which travels through its appointed channels up to the District Commander, by whom it is "hereby confirmed," and the printed copies of the decision distributed. However, that is all right. When the Quartermaster buys his "six (6) brooms," especially if in "open market," he knows he has authority for it, and he can use them boldly and without fear of reckoning.

An Amendment.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In my letter which appeared in your columns on Sunday, the following sentence occurs: "I am further disposed to believe that after their sojourn in London, they (i. e., American gentlemen) might be persuaded to take a jaunt into the country, and would admit that existence in our country towns in the Autumn is rather more than endurable." For towns please read houses. English country towns are usually insufferably dull; English country houses are, in the shooting season at least, usually quite the reverse. Your obedient servant,

AN OXFORD GRADUATE.

Funeral of Mrs. Vernon.

The funeral of Mrs. VERNON, late of Wallack's Theatre, and long known to play-goers of this City, took place yesterday morning from her residence, No. 22 University-place. The affair was extremely private. No notice regarding it had been given at the theatre, and the attendance was confined almost entirely to her immediate family, comprising her sister, Mrs. MAEDER, with her son and daughter, her sister-in-law, Mrs. FISHER, with her daughter CLARA, and a few others. She was interred in Green-Wood Cemetery.

Singular Larceny at Hastings, Westchester County.

A few weeks ago a distillery at Hastings was seized by a Government official, for some alleged violation of the Revenue laws, and a watchman placed in charge of the premises; but, through some negligence, a portion of the property was stolen, for, on Thursday evening, it was discovered that five barrels of whisky had been taken away. Information being given to Deputy Sheriff FLOOD he at once started off in pursuit of the offenders, and shortly overtook two men proceeding along the road with a wagon containing a large tank, valued at $250, which had been also stolen from the distillery. The men were taken before Justice DONOHUE, at Yonkers, where they gave their names as FREDERICK DONEKE and HENRY DONEKE, father and son, who were held for further examination.

WASHINGTON.

Comments on Mr. Reverdy Johnson's Published Views—The Colored Postmaster at Macon, Ga.—The City Election—Serious Disturbances.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 7.

The views of Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON on the Alabama question, and his course in England, have occasioned some comment here in Administration circles. Mr. JOHNSON'S complaint that the treaty was rejected because the Republican Party and the incoming President did not wish to allow the glory of the settlement of it to go to a Democrat and a Democratic Administration, is considered puerile. The treaty was negotiated in November, 1868, and reached here in January, 1869. It was signed and sent to the Senate shortly after its receipt, or rather a copy of it, which was here in the possession of Mr. SEWARD, was sent to the Senate as soon as Mr. JOHNSON had announced by cable the affixing of the signatures. The contents of it, and the bases on which it was proposed to effect a settlement, were generally understood and given publicity in the newspaper Press of both countries long before that time, and on this side of the Atlantic, at least, the condemnation of its terms was almost universal. Mr. JOHNSON meanwhile continued his exuberant addresses in England, to the disgust of his countrymen, while the people of the United States were being educated to a full understanding of the magnitude of their losses by the concession of belligerency which England had given to the South. In conversation on the subject to-day, an official, in commenting on Mr. JOHNSON'S views, said: "Everybody knows that the desire of our people to effect a settlement was so great at that time that the ratification of any treaty would have been an easy matter. But after the triumph of the Republican Party in November, and after the speeches of Mr. JOHNSON in England, the demands of our people increased. When the Senate was called to take action on it, in January, the universal sentiment of the country had rejected the whole affair. It was like the trampling of so many buffaloes, no man could stand against it. The Senate, in its rejection of the Johnson-Clarendon protocol, but recorded the verdict of the public. Mr. JOHNSON," said the same gentleman, "has unnecessarily complicated the matter. His course in England has been an evil one, and in the end it will be found that he has done more to foster animosity between the two countries than all other causes combined." In reference to his dispatch to Mr. FISH, asking authority to sign a supplemental convention providing for a reference of the claims of the United States Government against the English Government, he said: "Earl CLARENDON must have looked upon his overtures with disgust. Mr. JOHNSON had proved himself to be an egregious failure. He was no longer the representative of the administration, and had no authority whatever to reflect the views of either the President or the Secretary of State. Mr. FISH was perfectly right in declining to interfere, and in deciding to let the treaty take its course in the Senate." In reference to the letter which Mr. JOHNSON says Mr. SUMNER wrote to Mr. BRIGHT, very grave doubts are expressed of his accuracy, and while it is probable that Mr. SUMNER may have expressed some such opinion months before, there is the best reason to believe that he did not do it at the recent date mentioned by our Ex-Minister. From the opinion which Mr. JOHNSON expresses, that the rejection of the treaty was purely on political grounds, it is believed that his was the "high authority" on which a member of the English Cabinet in Parliament founded the statement to the same effect some time ago.

THE COLORED POSTMASTER AT MACON.

It is reported to-day that the President has ordered the removal of Rev. H. M. TURNER, the recently-appointed colored Postmaster of Macon, Ga. The protests against this appointment, from Republicans in Georgia, have been very strong. A Government officer who has just returned from that State, says that it was more unpopular among the Republicans than the Democrats, who rather enjoyed the change, inasmuch as WASHINGTON, who was removed to make room for TURNER, had always been obnoxious to the rebels as a Union man. It will be remembered that TURNER was recently appointed on the recommendation of Senator SUMNER; but there is little doubt, from all that can be learned, that TURNER, who possesses much ability in certain respects, succeeded in deceiving Mr. SUMNER, as well as the President.

THE INDIANS IN KANSAS.

Senator ROSS, accompanied by Mr. REYNOLDS, editor of the Lawrence (Kansas) Republican Journal, called on the President to-day with reference to the Indian atrocities in that State. Mr. REYNOLDS comes as the immediate representative of the Governor of Kansas. He says that unless additional military protection is at once afforded, southwestern Kansas will be depopulated. The President promised to give the matter his immediate consideration, and would at once confer with Generals SHERMAN and SHERIDAN on the subject of increased military protection.

THE NEW-YORK COLLECTORSHIP.

The contest over the Sixth New-York Collection District was increased in vigor this morning by the arrival of General JOHN COCHRANE, JAS. B TAYLOR and J. A. RICHMOND, in the interest of the candidacy of the latter. They had interviews with Secretary BOUTWELL and Commissioner DELANO, but no positive results were accomplished. The Supervisorship will not be disturbed at present.

THE ELECTION.

The election to-day was attended with considerable excitement, and in one of the wards (the Second) a considerable riot occurred, right in the most aristocratic quarter of the city. One man was dangerously, and perhaps fatally wounded, by a shot, and several others were wounded. The details are given elsewhere. The Republicans carried the city by a large majority, the Citizen's or Democratic Party being very apathetic. To-night there is much disorder in the streets, but no outbreaks as yet. Owing in part to the excitement, and in part to the recent ordinance of the Common Council on the admission of colored people, the National Theatre, which was to open with a company of minstrels, is nearly deserted, not fifty people being present.

SALE OF GOVERNMENT VESSELS.

The Navy Department, in addition to selling the *Shamok

at present there are none to bestow. Letters are also received daily referring to letters previously written, and stating that no replies have been made to them. It is not the practice of the Department to give responses to letters applying for office, excepting in cases of appointment.

THE CITY ELECTION—ALMOST A RIOT.

The election for Collector, Register, Surveyor and members of the City Council took place today. Major RICHARDS, Superintendent of Police, had taken the precaution to secure to every voter the exercise of his franchise, and and at the same time to preserve peace at the polls. The restaurants and other drinking places were closed by the same authority. Long before daybreak, crowds, principally colored men, gathered at the polls and formed in line for voting, although this did not commence until 7 o'clock. There was, throughout the city, during the day, great excitement at the respective precincts. No disturbances have occurred to-night, although there is the usual excitement attendant on elections. The vote was lighter to-day than it was at the municipal election last year, the number of registered voters now being five thousand less than then. The Republicans nominated as against the citizens' ticket, JOHN F. COOK, colored man, for Register, one colored man for Alderman out of seven to be elected, and six colored men for Common Council out of twenty-one to be elected; or, one colored man in each of the seven wards for the City Councils.

The Republicans elect their entire city ticket, including the Collector, Register and Surveyor, by a large majority, probably over 3,000. Nine colored men are elected, namely, the Register, one Alderman and seven members of the Common Council.

APPOINTMENTS.

The President has made the following appointments: ANGUS PUTNAM, Collector of Customs at Middletown, Conn.; G. C. LOFLAND, Collector of Internal Revenue, for the Sixteenth District of Ohio; T. M. BROWN, Assessor of Internal Revenue, for the Tenth District of Massachusetts.

The President has appointed JOSEPH T. HOYLE United States Marshal for Nebraska.

NAVAL.

Chief Engineer JOHN H. LONG has been detached from the Saugus and ordered to the Seminole.

ARMY.

Brevet Major R. M. HILL, of the Washington Arsenal, has been ordered to the command of the Arsenal at Indianapolis, Ind.; Brevet Major J. R. EDIE, Jr., has been relieved from the Detroit Arsenal and ordered to the Washington, D. C., Arsenal; Brevet Major F. H. RATES, United States Army, is relieved from duty as Chief Mustering and Disbursing Officer at St. Louis, Mo., and ordered to proceed to his home. The President has accepted the resignation of Captain WILLIAM R. LOWE, of the Nineteenth Infantry.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

THE SEYMOUR MEMORIAL CONCERTS.

Tickets for these entertainments are now for sale at Steinway Hall, at Wallack's Theatre, and at SCHIRMER'S music store, No. 701 Broadway. The price of admission is extremely moderate—$1 to all parts of the hall, excepting reserved seats, for which, in the evening, $2 will be charged. We again call attention to the brilliant collection of names which will lend distinction to this occasion. According to present arrangements Miss CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG will sing at the afternoon concert, and Mme. PAREPA-ROSA will appear in the evening.

FIFTH-AVENUE THEATRE.

"The Hermit's Bell" no longer sounds at this establishment, the management having fallen back upon two of the most popular operas in the repertory of Mr. FISK'S company—"Barbe Bleue" and "La Périchole"—which are to be represented alternately every evening this week. On Wednesday an afternoon performance of "La Périchole" will be given at the Brooklyn Academy of Music with Mlle. IRMA and M. AUJAC in the principal characters.

Theatrical.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.

An overflowing audience, last evening, witnessed the first representation of the new pantomime, "Mother Hubbard," at this theatre. The performance, which terminated at too late an hour to admit of extended comment this morning, was received with considerable favor, the various members of the LAURI family being especially warmly welcomed. The splendors of certain prominent scenes excited much admiration, and the incidental ballets were generously applauded for their fanciful ingenuity. The fault of the entertainment was its excessive length. This can, and doubtless will, be remedied, but the weakness of the opening burlesque, the language and situations of which were, as a whole, even more dull and absurd than those of most productions of its class, is, we fear, past praying for. Vigorous and vivacious acting, however, prevented it from wearying the audience last night utterly beyond endurance. The whole piece will undoubtedly be remodeled and otherwise improved for this evening. We shall take occasion to speak of it hereafter in its reformed condition.

The Burlesque Artistes at Niblo's.

We have received, with a request to publish, the subjoined communication:

AN APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC.

I have appeared before you as an artiste for a period of thirty-five weeks, during which time you have accorded to myself and troupe the most liberal patronage. The notices which the Press have bestowed upon our efforts have been, in the highest degree, complimentary, until within a recent date; since when a series of attacks of a personal nature have appeared in various publications, leveled against Mr. ALEX. HENDERSON, (who is my joint partner in the Lydia Thompson Burlesque Troupe) and myself. After so many months of flattering recognition and approval of the class of entertainment over which I preside, it is suddenly discovered, by a certain clique, that the performances are disgusting, vulgar, licentious and degrading, &c. Such attacks, it is too evident, emanate from unscrupulous persons, instigated solely by private malice, with the avowed and published object of injuring me personally in your good opinion, and of driving myself and troupe from the City.

Against unjust strictures, which are not criticism, I have no resource but to appeal to that public who have been so generous and kind to me for their assistance in obtaining justice. Unconscious of having failed, by either act or deed, in my duty to the public as an artiste, I confidently appeal to you for consideration and sympathy in the outrageous and unjustifiable attacks that are being made against myself and Troupe, and to assure you that so long as I have the honor of appearing before you, my best exertions shall be made to deserve and merit a continuance of your kindly support and approval. LYDIA THOMPSON.

NIBLO'S GARDEN, 7th June, 1869.

John C. Breckinridge in Wisconsin.

The Milwaukee Wisconsin, a Republican paper, in its issue of Thursday last, gives the following:

"The visit of Hon. JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE to Wisconsin is to look after land which he owns in the northern counties of the State, and in considerable quantities. It has run behind in taxes, and needs looking after. Mr. BRECKINRIDGE appears to be an affable gentleman, and was the centre of attraction at the Newhall yesterday. Several of the old Democratic wheelhorses visited him at his room, and had a talk with him. About the rebellion he was reticent, but regarding the future prospects of the country was perfectly free to give his opinion. One gentleman asked him what he thought of GRANT and his administration, and the reply was that the President was smart enough to take care of himself. His Cabinet, while none of the best, was just such an one as GRANT needed, and was better for his purposes than one of more talent would be. It was not designed to make the Administration a brilliant one, and GRANT'S ambition was to make it an every-day sort of useful affair. He was studying the best way to do this, and Mr. BRECKINRIDGE believed he would succeed in a degree sufficient to make the people feel easy, although they would be by no means satisfied. Mr. BRECKINRIDGE does not believe we shall be dragged into a foreign war, although he felt the position of the country to be a delicate one. He thought we should have our dignity ruffled pretty hard before we got up to the fighting pitch, but said, if we had a war with England and France, the South would furnish men enough, if necessary, to do the fighting. The South did not entertain the most liberal feelings toward European countries, and many of the people would hail 'most any kind of a fight with satisfaction."

From the editorial columns of the same issue of the paper we quote the following:

"JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE was in this city yesterday. He has been a marked man in the Southern Confederacy, and took an active part in all its aggressive movements. Yet when he was here, gentlemen of all parties called upon him and cordially welcomed him, because the bitter strife is over and now we are all Americans, and we must work together to build up the waste places made by the war. Mr. BRECKINRIDGE is an attractive man, a gentleman of mind and culture, and we are pleased to believe that he will hereafter work zealously for the good of the whole Republic, and that no man will frown more severely on any efforts to renew the disturbances of the past. There is nothing boastful in his manner, but he welcomes attention from the Northerner with that kindly feeling which indicates that he regards these courtesies as a generous concession to the bonds of a revived national unity, and that the glory and happiness of us all are inseparably bound up in the welfare and prosperity of our common country."

LONDON, Monday, June 7.

The announced predetermination of the majority of the House of Lords to reject the Irish Church bill creates intense excitement, and threatens to eventually bring about a conflict between the Lords and Commons. It is rumored in some quarters that the announcement is only made to feel the public pulse, and ascertain how far the Lords dare go. The general impression is that the bill will be thrown out on its second reading.

The Standard (Tory) admits that the peril of the proposed action is too obvious to be ignored by the least thoughtful or conscientious of the hereditary legislators; but says the Lords resolved, in compliance with the urgent demands of tens and hundreds of thousands of people in every part of the country, to risk all in a contest with an imperious Minister, and with the overbearing majority in the House of Commons. If crushed, not only the Church and the Constitution fall with them—the liberties of England will be sacrificed to the ascendancy of that democratic principle which is the most dangerous foe of personal and political freedom. It matters not whether those who approved regret the decision to give battle. There is nothing for them to do but to take their places in the ranks and fight for all they hold dearest, in the full certainty that all is at stake. Let the whole Protestant and conservative power of the realm be erected, and give the Lords such support of public opinion as to restrain the struggle within the limits of the Constitution, and make a self-willed and overbearing Minister—always at heart the enemy of the Lords, and likely to be exasperated by his unexpected defeat—feel that there are limits which he dare not pass. Already have his organs threatened that, which if done, would call for impeachment. It is necessary that he be made to feel that he dare not execute the threat, and that he must not only deal with the Lords, but with the wealthy, resolute and influential classes of England and Ireland, who are the actual majority of the English nation.

The Morning Post shows that a rejection of the bill will not prevent its ultimate passage, and discredits the idea that the Lords will refuse it a second reading.

The Star uses threatening language, and says the Church of Ireland must not cumber the ground after December; that the least which will be said will be proclaimed from the house-tops, viz., that the House of Lords is not a more logical, desirable, excusable institution than the Irish Church, in the feverheat which will follow the rejection of the bill—a heat such as has not been seen since Birmingham threatened to march on London in the name of reform. Cries will be heard for the downfall of an obsolete Chamber, no longer a disguised anachronism, existing by the decent deference of the popular will, which, WELLINGTON once said, ought never again to be withheld. With pure blindness of buzzards, these misguided noblemen require further proofs to be convinced of the opinion of the country. It is not worth while to attempt the demonstration of that opinion. When the issue comes their lordships will probably be wise in their time.

The News says the vote of the Lords will, at the worst, postpone for a few months only the fate of the Irish Church. Its indirect effect will be graver. It will raise the question of the position the House of Lords holds under the Constitution. The relations of the constituencies, the House of Commons, the Executive and the Crown are self-adjusting; if a hitch occurs, the machinery sets itself in order by its own action. The House of Lords stands outside this system. Its good sense fails only when brought in harmony with the rest of the Constitution by the forcible obtrusion upon it of a number of members sufficient to overbear the opinions of the original body. A biassed jury has to be packed. Whether a second Chamber doing its work upon these conditions can be a permanent part of the Government, the Lords seem bent upon forcing the public to notice their position. The Peers threaten the revival of pretensions long abandoned, namely, the old baronial attitude of the mediæval days, when the Commons were only allowed the right of humble supplication and petition, and not really to govern the country.

The Telegraph (moderate) has a timid article, which concludes as follows: "The country has spoken unmistakably and finally. If forced to speak again its accents will no longer be free from indignation or preserve the mood of moderation, which to the last it desires to earnestly maintain."

The Times says we are on the eve of a crisis. Nothing since the throes which preceded the Reform bill can be compared with the consequences which attend the threatened conduct of the Peers. The result of the struggle is not doubtful. If the Lords succeeded at first they would be compelled to undergo a second tender of the measure which they have rejected at first.

The results of their action touch all, put in jeopardy not only themselves and their privileges, but the peace of the great town and the maintenance of law and order in the country; above all, they do their best to provoke an outburst of passionate violence in an unhappy country, the vast majority of whose inhabitants the Lords propose to outrage by a contemptuous disregard of their wishes. As to the majority, the Opposition draw this conclusion,—that they are resolved to intrench themselves in their own opinions, and rely upon their financial power in disdain of the consequence to themselves and the nation. They will be rudely awakened from their delusion. It cannot be doubtful which will succeed in the contest, themselves or the nation. The only question is not whether the power they think they possess is to be proved non-existent, but whether the power which they can exercise will not be so irrevocably broken as to vanish out of existence.

The outside papers, which circulate more among the people, talk very revolutionary. The probability is the Lords will be alarmed into the passage of the bill; but the mere fact of the announcement of the inclination and power to defeat it, evidently excites discussion adverse to the continuation of hereditary legislation.

LONDON, Monday, June 7.

In reply to a Conservative deputation today, Lord DERBY said he spoke as a unit in the House of Lords, not wishing to influence the minds or fetter the action of others. While many friends of the Irish Church wish to amend, not reject, the bill for its disestablishment, he was persuaded that rejection was the only course. He believed the bill would be rejected by a large majority. Such a course was safest in such a revolutionary step. He felt satisfied it would receive the assent of the Conservatives of the country, who would continue to increase their support if the coercion of the Peers was attempted.

A meeting of Conservatives was held in London to-night. Resolutions were adopted condemning the Irish Church bill.

It is understood that Mr. GLADSTONE proposes, in case the House of Lords reject the bill, to prorogue the present session of Parliament immediately, and inaugurate a new session. In order to insure the passage of the bill it is proposed to create a new batch of peers, including the Marquis of HARTINGTON, Lord AMBERLEY, the eldest sons of most of the Liberal Peers, and all the Scotch and Irish Peers now without seats in the House of Lords.

The Pall Mall Gazette regrets the bad effect the position the House of Lords have assumed will have on Ireland, particularly in regard to the land question. To rule, in the sense of deciding what the nation shall or shall not decide upon, is beyond the competence of the House of Lords or any other governing body.

The prosecution against the bank directors, Messrs. BRADSHAW, MANGLES and ABBIS, for conspiracy and fraud, has been discharged; but Mr. FINNEY has been held for trial.

Efforts to Prevent the Return of Opposition Candidates in the Undecided Districts.

LONDON, Monday, June 7.

Letters from Paris state that a strong pressure is brought to bear in the undecided elections to prevent the return of Opposition candidates. The contests between MM. THIERS and SHEE, and between MM. FAVRE and HENRI ROCHEFORT, are regarded with much interest. The Emperor, it is asserted, views the probable election of M. ROCHEFORT as a personal, is not a deadly, insult. The ultimate results of the elections and their effect on the Government are regarded with great curiosity. The Government is fully alive to the heaviness of the blow and the difficulties it will have to meet in the future. Its friends tender advice freely, but the only concession possible is a Parliamentary Government, which the Emperor regards with particular aversion. The Government is inclined to do something as soon as possible, and with the least inconvenience. If the balloting results in favor of ROCHEFORT, the step will probably be taken immediately.

MM. THIERS, FERRY, JULES FAVRE and GARNIER PAGES, have been declared elected by ballot.

There were tumultuous scenes at Montmarte, and arrests were made by the Police. It is reported that some persons were wounded during the disturbance.

The Races—The Grand Prize of Paris—"Glaneur" the Winner—The English "Drummer" Second.

PARIS, Monday, June 7.

Yesterday, at the race course, the great feature of the day was the Grand Prize of Paris, un objet d'art, the gift of His Majesty, the Emperor, and 100,000 francs, given half by the City of Paris and half by the five great railway companies of France, added to a sweepstakes of 1,000 francs each, 600 francs forfeit; the second horse to receive 10,000 francs, and the third 5,000 out of the stakes; about one mile and seven furlongs; closed with 171 subscribers. The race was won by M. A. LUPIN'S b. c. Glaneur, by Buckthorn, out of Alma, beating Mr. G. JONES' b. c. The Drummer, by Rataplan, second; Mr. H. SAVILE'S c. Ryshworth by Skirmisher, out of Vertumna, third. Twelve started. The betting just previous to the race was four to one against Glaneur, even on The Drummer, and six to one against Ryshworth. The weather was delightful, though very warm. A great throng of people was present, among whom were the Emperor, the Empress and the Prince Imperial of France, ISABELLA of Spain, Queen SOPHIA, of Holland, and many other notables.

Anxiety Regarding Cuba—Suppression of News.

MADRID, Monday, June 7.

There is much anxiety about Cuba on every hand. The Government is unwilling to publish the telegrams received from Cuba, which augments the uneasiness.

Arrest of a Bishop who Refused to Appear Before a Secular Court.

VIENNA, Monday, June 7.

Bishop LENZ, having refused to obey a legal summons to appear before a secular Court, was arrested and brought to the Court by the Police.

MEXICO.

General Rosecrans—The Mission of Consul Brinks to Washington—Increase of Crime.

HAVANA, Sunday, June 6.

Mexican dates to the 1st inst. have been received by the arrival of a steamer from Vera Cruz.

General ROSECRANS, the American Minister, denies the statement recently published in the New-York papers that he had asked permission to remain at Mexico until the perfection of his policy.

Minister LERDO DE TEJEDA had published a communication explaining the policy of the Government in 1863 and 1864, without explaining, however, or even touching upon its present policy.

Consul BRINKS' mission to Washington was a subject of general discussion. Though the Mexican journals were silent upon that topic, it was well known that all parties in Mexico were opposed to selling any Mexican territory to the United States, though there was a well-defined desire for a protectorate.

Legislation for the Puebla Railroad branch to Santa Anna had been concluded.

The office of Minister to Washington was not sought after because of the lack of pay attaching thereto. Minister NELSON'S arrival, and the development of the policy of GRANT'S Administration, were anxiously awaited.

Crime continued on the increase despite the efforts of the Government to suppress it.

Important Appointments—Ignacio Mariscal Minister to Washington.

HAVANA, Monday, June 7.

The following news has just arrived from Mexico: IGNACIO MARISCAL has been appointed Minister of Mexico to Washington. GOMEZ PALACIO has been made one of the Commissioners under the convention for the settlement of claims between Mexico and the United States. LOZANO will probably receive the appointment of Minister of Justice.

The Mexican Congress has adjourned.

Heavy Robbery of the United States Depository at Santa Fe—A Depositor Found Dead Near the Safe.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 7.

Treasurer SPINNER received a dispatch this morning from Santa Fé, New-Mexico, announcing that the United States Depository in that city was broken open last night and robbed. The loss is not yet ascertained. L. J. COLLINS, a depositor, was found dead, shot through the heart. The Government officials had possession of the building and such funds as remained, and would at once proceed to ascertain the exact condition of affairs. The last statement from this bank (made on the 22d of May last) shows that there was then to the credit of the United States about $476,000. Since then, however, large amounts have been drawn; and as the telegram mentions that funds yet remain, it is impossible to learn just now what the loss is to the Government. A St. Louis dispatch gives as the amount stolen "several hundred thousand dollars."

The Murder of Adkins in Georgia—The Letter of Miss Adkins Pronounced a Forgery.

ATLANTA, Ga., Monday June 7.

The Warrenton Clipper, published in the town where the daughter of Senator ADKINS lives, pronounces on undeniable authority that the letter published in the Macon papers, and purporting to have been written by Miss ADKINS, wherein she claims that the murderers of Senator ADKINS are known, and that no effort has been made to arrest them, and her appeal to the people of Georgia and the nation for justice, is a base forgery gotten up for political purposes. Every effort is being made by the civil and military authorities to bring the offenders to justice. General FERRY has ordered two companies of infantry to Warrenton, with instructions to the commanding officers to aid the civil authorities in ferreting out the murderers.

Suit Against the Central Railroad at Trenton, N. J.—The State Prison.

TRENTON, N. J., Monday, June 7.

In the Supreme Court, now in session here, an important case—ELLSWORTH vs. The Central Railroad—is being argued. DIXON and DUTCHER are attorneys for the plaintiff; B. WILLIAMSON, attorney for the defendants, and F. T. FRELINGHUYSEN, counsel. It originated in the Hudson Circuit, and is a suit to compel the Company to build a bridge across their road to connect the lands of the plaintiff. Its importance lies in the fact that the door will be opened for other applications of a similar character.

The State Prison seems to be getting along much better under the new law governing it. The officers have contracted out 400 men, at sixty cents a man, to C. D. BIGELOW, of Crawford, N. J., and LEVI B. HOWE, of Hudson County, for the shoe business. They begin the building of a new shop to-morrow, outside the present limits, by running out from the south wall 240 by 50 feet. The shop will be two stories high.

THE INTERNATIONAL BOAT RACE.

Harvard Favored by Yale—The Law School Allowed Position in the Representative Boat.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BOSTON, Monday, June 7.

The Yale men have done the handsome thing by Harvard. As the latter woul lose her four best men on account of their being in England at the time of the race with Yale, the favor granted below was asked by the Harvard Club. Heretofore only undergraduates have been allowed in the representative boats at Worcester; but now a member of the Harvard Law School is allowed to row as one of the crew. Mr. FAY will hence go out to England two weeks later than the actual four, but as he only goes to fill any vacancy that may subsequently arise, he can be tolerably well spared that long. The Yale card runs thus:

NEW-HAVEN, June 5, 1869.

Mr. A. P. Loring:

DEAR SIR: At a meeting of the Yale Navy, this P. M., it was unanimously voted to allow Mr. FAY to be placed on your University crew, provided, first, that he is to go to England as one of your two substitutes for the four-oared crew; second, and that this arrangement be not claimed as a precedent for future action in the selection of crews. Wishing you the best of success with your four-oared crew,

I am yours, very truly,

WM. A. COPP, Commodore Yale Navy.
A. P. LORING, Captain.

THE INDIANS.

Order from General Grant Regarding the Government Commission—Directions to the Military Agents—The Policy of the Board and Commissioner Parker.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 7.

The following Executive order relative to Indian matters has been made by the President:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, June 3, 1869.

A Commission of citizens having been appointed by the President, under the authority of the law, to coöperate with the Administrative Departments in the management of Indian affairs, consisting of William Welsh, of Philadelphia; John O. Farwell, of Chicago; Geo. H. Stewart, of Philadelphia; Robert Campbell, of St. Louis; W. E. Dodge, of New-York; E. S. Tobey of Boston; Felix R. Brunot, of Pittsburg; Nathan Bishop, of New-York, and Henry S. Lane of Indiana, the following regulations will, until further directions, control the action of the said Commission, and of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in matters coming under their joint supervision:

1. The Commission will make its own organization and employ its own clerical assistants, keeping its necessary expenses of transportation, subsistence and clerk hire when actually engaged in said service, within the amount appropriated therefor by Congress.

2. The Commission shall be furnished with full opportunity to inspect the records of the Indian officers, and to obtain full information as to the conduct of the affairs therefor.

3. They shall have full power to inspect in person or by sub-committee the various Indian Superintendencies and Agencies in the Indian country; to be present at the payment of the annuities, at consultations and councils with the Indians, and when on the ground to advise the Superintendents and Agents in the performance of their duties.

4. They are authorized to be present in person or by sub-committee at the purchases of goods for Indian purposes, and inspect the said purchases, advising with the Commissioner of Indian Affairs in regard thereto.

5. Whenever they shall deem it necessary or advisable that the instructions of the superintendents or agents be changed or modified, they will communicate such advice through the office of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to the Secretary of the Interior, and in a like manner their advice as to changes in the modes of purchasing goods or conducting the affairs of the Indian Bureau. Proper complaints against superintendents or agents, or other officers, will in the same manner be forwarded to the Indian Bureau or Department of the Interior for action.

6. The Commission will, at their Board meetings, determine upon the recommendations to be made as to the plans of civilization or dealing with the Indians, and submit the same for action in the manner above indicated, and all plans involving the expenditure of public money will be acted upon by the Executive or Secretary of the Interior before expenditure is made under the same.

7. The usual mode of accounting with the Treasury cannot be changed, and all expenditures, therefore, must be subject to the approvals required by law, and by the regulations of the Treasury Department; and all vouchers must conform to the same laws and requirements and pass through the ordinary channels.

8. All the officers of Government connected with the Indian service are enjoined to afford every facility and opportunity to said Commissioners and their sub-committees in the performance of their duties, and to give the most respectful heed to their advice within the limits of such officers' positive instructions from their superiors; to allow such committee full access to their records and accounts, and to cooperate with them in the most earnest manner, to the extent of their proper powers, in the general work of civilizing the Indians, protecting them in their legal rights, and regulating them to become industrious citizens in permanent homes, instead of following a roving and savage life.

9. The Commission will keep such records or minutes of their proceedings as may be necessary to afford evidence of their action, and will provide for the manner in which their communications with and their advice to the Government shall be made and authenticated.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARMY OFFICERS.

Commissioner PARKER instructs the army officers assigned to duty as Indian Agents and Superintendents as follows:

It being the wish of the Government of the United States to collect the Indians and locate them in permanent abodes upon reservations, and reasonable appropriations having been made to assist them in sustaining themselves after such permanent location by the pursuits of civilized life, you are earnestly requested to use your best endeavors in coöperating to advance this humane and wise policy. Hence you will use every means practicable to inform yourself as fully as possible respecting the condition of the Indians in your superintendency, impressing the Indian mind, upon every favorable opportunity, with the views of the Government, and thus prepare them to submit to the inevitable change of their mode of life to pursuits more congenial to a civilized state. You will endeavor to keep constantly before their minds the pacific intentions of the Government, and obtain their confidence by acts of kindness and honesty and justly dealing with them, thereby securing that peace which it is the wish of all good citizens to establish and maintain. Your success in the accomplishment of these objects will depend greatly upon the efficiency, discretion and care to be exercised by you in the economical expenditure of the means placed at your disposal for this purpose, and it is confidently hoped that the result will prove the wisdom and expediency of your appointment for this responsible duty.

ST. LOUIS, Monday, June 7.

Late dispatches from Western Kansas say that a courier from Adjutant-General MOOREHOUSE, who left for Saline, with scouts, on Friday, reached Ellsworth, Saturday, for help to take care of the wounded. The courier represents that what are left of the Swedes in that region were preparing to leave for Chicago. A mail party due at Fort Larned on the 2d inst. have not been heard from, and they are supposed to have been captured. Guards have been sent to different stations on the railroad to protect lives and property. Bands of Indians daily cross the railroad going both north and south. One hundred men were to leave Hays City to-day to scout on the Solomon River.

Important Whisky Fraud Case in Court at Boston.

BOSTON, Monday, June 7.

In the United States Circuit Court to-day, the trial of the whisky fraud case was commenced. The indictment alleges that JOHN F. PERRY, of Buffalo, ETHAN C. FROST and CLARK S. SANBORN, of New-York, and WILLIS L. BRINK, ANDREW J. HOUGHTON, THOMAS FELL and EZEKIEL S. JOHNSON, all of Boston, in the month of August, 1867, conspired with one HIGHLAND D. CHAFFEE, of Buffalo, and others, to defraud the United States of taxes due upon three hundred barrels of whisky, containing about 20,000 gallons of distilled spirits. The amount of taxes due the Government was about $40,000. It is charged that the spirits were manufactured by PERRY at his distillery in Buffalo and stored by him at his bonded warehouse in that city; that the conspiracy to defraud was effected by causing large quantities of the spirits to be removed from time to time on permits from the Collector of Internal Revenue at Buffalo to Boston, and further, that the certificates purporting to have been given by WILLIAM H. MCCARTNEY, Collector of the Third Massachusetts District, are forgeries. The Boston parties plead "not guilty." The trial will probably occupy several days.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

News from Honolulu—Earthquake at Molokai—Recall of the French Governor of the Marquesas Group—General Intelligence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, June 7.

The French steam frigate Astree, Admiral CLARE, arrived from Honolulu yesterday. Forty-six ocean steamers and sailing vessels also arrived at this port yesterday. Honolulu advices to May 24 have been received. There was a severe earthquake at Molokai on the 4th of April. There was considerable alarm but no serious damage was done. Dispatches for the Duke of EDINBURG had been received at Honolulu. His advent was looked for with considerable interest. Leprosy prevailed to an alarming extent in Lapaind, a favorite resort for whale ships. Over one-half the population was affected by the disease.

Intelligence from the Marquesas Islands states that the French Governor lately in charge of the Marquesas group had been recalled, and a new appointment made.

Drunkenness was fearfully prevalent in the Island of Hiosa, where, upon the death of an old prophet, it was proclaimed that "God was dead," and the restriction on rum drinking was ended.

Sailed from Honolulu, April 27, Kaimer, for Bremen; 28th, Mattie Banks, for the Guano Islands; May 11, Syren, for Boston; 14th, Lorenzo, for Baker's Island.

First Through Passenger Train to Sacramento.

SHERMAN, Wyoming Territory, at the Summit of Black Hills, 8,258 Feet Above the Sea Level, Monday, June 7—7 P. M.

The Pullman dining-car International, the pioneer of its class over the Pacific Railroad, is passing the summit, accompanied by two Pullman palace sleeping-cars, forming a part of a through train to Sacramento. Among the passengers from the East are Mr. WAIT, the proprietor of the Brevoort House, New-York; Mr. SWINTON, of New-York, and Mr. SIMONTON, of the New-York Associated Press, with his wife and son; one hundred and forty-six passengers in all. The dining-car seats forty-eight at table at once; is compact but pleasant; has a kitchen and ice-box and a provision cellar beneath. Dinner is now being served, moving across the wilderness at the rate of thirty miles an hour, over an excellent road, in cars free from dust and thoroughly ventilated, with deliciously soft mountain air, the party partaking of as luxurious a meal as any first-class hotel can afford. The vote is unanimous that no railroad travel in America or Europe equals this in comfort or pleasure for men, women or children.

CONVENTION OF PRINTERS.

ALBANY, Monday, June 7.

The National Typographical Union met here at 10 A. M. to-day, in the Assembly Chamber. Over 120 delegates were present. ROBERT MCKECHNIE, President, called the Convention to order, and Rev. Dr. HECKMAN made the prayer. FRANCIS FRECKELTON, President of the Albany Union, delivered an address of welcome to the members, to which President MCKECHNIE responded. A Committee of Five on Credentials was then appointed, when the Convention took a recess for one hour. Misses LEWIS and HOWARD, the Committee of the New-York Lady Compositors, had seats in the body of the Convention, and are meeting with much encouragement as to their application for a charter.

The Convention reassembled at 2:15 P. M. The Committee on Credentials reported, calling attention to the large number of proxy representatives and recommending that all such should be rejected; they also recommended that the ladies representing the Woman's Typographical Union No. 1 of New-York be admitted to seats within the bar of the Convention. The report was accepted, when a long discussion took place on the proxy representation question. It was finally decided to refer the matter to a special committee of five. The division in the Springfield, Ill., Union was referred to a special committee.

The President then read his annual report.

The Treasurer reported that the receipts for the past year were $2,400 66, and the expenditures $1,671 20.

The Artemus Ward fund had increased the past year $1,188 62, $1,000 of which had been invested in Government bonds.

A committee was appointed on the contested-seat cases from Springfield, Ill.

D. W. FLYNN, of Washington, offered the following:

Whereas, The highest interests of the working classes are attained only by a union among themselves, in which should be embraced all workingmen in the country; and,

Whereas, Impartial justice will, as a sound and conservative policy, require that all workingmen who are willing to support organizations tending to promote the welfare of workingmen, should be allowed to become members of such organizations, and not be prohibited for reasons not applicable to every workingman in the country; and,

Whereas, If any class of workingmen is denied admission into organizations for the promotion of the interest of the working classes, on personal grounds alone, such denial will certainly eventuate in the combination of the class denied against the existing organization, resulting in a low scale of wages for both parties; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the National Typographical Union in Convention assembled, that it is contrary to the letter and spirit of the constitution of the National Typographical Union, subversive of its best interests, and in violation of the policy, principle and objects of the organization, to make race or color a test of qualification of membership.

Resolved, That it will be flagrantly unjust for any subordinate Union to deny admission to any printer, merely on the ground of race or color.

On motion of Mr. MURRAY, of New-Orleans, the resolutions were tabled, 56 to 28.

The Convention then adjourned till 9 A. M. to-morrow.

ST. DOMINGO.

The Reported Burning of the Custom-House at Puerto Plata—Departure of Dominicans for the Cuban Army—The Annexation Movements—Return of Professor Gabb.

By the arrival at this port yesterday of the schooner Charles Albert, in ten days, direct from Puerto Plata, we have St. Domingo advices to the 27th ult.

The report received here from Havana by cable, and published on Sunday morning last, that a great fire had occurred at Puerto Plata, destroying the Custom-house and several other buildings, whereby many merchants were ruined, is incorrect. A fire did occur at Puerto Plata on the 26th of May, but it was confined to only one building, situated near the Custom-house. The building—a large store—was destroyed, but beyond the scorching of its walls, the Custom-house sustained no damage. The sufferers by the fire are two foreign merchants—Messrs. HAMBURGER and MEYER—their losses amounting to $10,000, no portion of which was covered by insurance.

Many Dominicans had left for Cuba to join the insurgents in that island, and many more were preparing to leave. The most intense interest was felt in Santo Domingo in the revolutionary movement in Cuba, and the hope was freely expressed on all sides that the Cubans might meet with success.

The desire for annexation with the United States was growing stronger every day, and there was a general feeling of disappointment among the people when they learned that Congress had adjourned without having taken decisive action on the question.

Professor GABB, State Geologist, had left for New-York, via Havana, after having made very extensive explorations in the copper regions of the south of the island and in the gold-yielding districts to the west of Santo Domingo City. His conclusions as to the auriferous resources of Santo Domingo had not been made known, but it was believed they would be of a very favorable character.

A strawberry and ice cream fair and festival, for the benefit of the church, will be held in the West Harlem Methodist Episcopal Church, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, near Sixth-avenue, this evening. Every effort will be made to render the festival pleasing and attractive. Tickets ten cents each.

THE WHISKY FRAUDS.

Judge Fullerton's Trial Postponed Till September.

The trial of Ex-Judge WM. W. FULLERTON on various charges of complicity in the whisky frauds, which was to have been commenced in the United States Circuit Court yesterday morning, was postponed, on account of the illness of Judge NELSON, until after the Summer vacation.

The Court was opened by District Judge BLATCHFORD at 11 A. M., and after the roll of jurors had been called, the District-Attorney, Judge PIERREPONT, addressed the Court as follows:

May it please the Court, the case of The United States vs. William W. Fullerton, was set down for trial this day. Judge NELSON had decided to set it down specially for the 7th of June. I received a letter from the Judge Saturday morning stating that, although he was recovering from his illness, yet it would be impossible for him to hold Court for the present, and the direction given by him is that the case stand over the Summer vacation—this disposition to be made of it on motion before your Honor. The United States are ready for the trial, and, I am informed, that the counsel for the defence are also ready; but, under the circumstances, it is impossible for the trial to proceed now, and I, therefore, move that it stand over till after the Summer vacation, in accordance with the wishes of Judge NELSON.

Judge BLATCHFORD—The case will take that direction.

The Summer vacation expires about the middle of September, and it is expected that the next term of the Circuit Court will commence on the 20th of that month.

Changes in the Board of Education.

The Finance Committee of the New-York Board of Education, having been authorized at the last meeting to reduce the working force of the various departments of the Board, if possible, commenced doing so yesterday in real earnest. Five employes were decapitated without an instant's notice having been given. Their names are EDGAR D. HOWLAND, Deputy Clerk, who has served the Board most creditably for the past eight years; EDWIN COE, Depository Clerk, who has served ten years; LEVI A. FARR, (son of Ex-Commissioner FARR,) Depository Clerk, who has been thus engaged for three years; THEODORE SCHWARTZ, Depository Clerk, who has served two years, and JOHN DUNHAM, Engineer, who has held that position for four years. Rumors current outside the hall declare that each of the places thus vacated will be filled at once, and that not a dollar will be saved by the removals. One of WM. M. TWEED'S sons is spoken of as the probable successor of Mr. HOWLAND, and the only thing known of the other new-comers is that their names are prefixed by O's and Mc's, and that they are unconditional Tammanyites to whom the "Ring" is indebted for political favors. Each of the parties removed has an unimpeachable record before the Board, and were universal favorites with those who dealt with them. Two of them—Messrs. COE and SCHWARTZ—are Democrats, but, unfortunately for them in this instance, are related to Mr. BOSSE, Clerk of the Old Board, and of course they had to go. The others were Republicans who answered all the requirements of a non-partisan body, but who became exceedingly distasteful to the Board after politics had been allowed to enter it. It is believed that many other changes will be made in the several departments, as soon as the "slates" shall have been fully made up. It is said that the hour of meeting of the Board will be changed to 4 o'clock, instead of 5 o'clock, as at present.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

To-day will be a very busy and interesting one. Four important sales will be made, each worthy of attention, and they will all doubtless be well attended.

At the Exchange Salesroom, Messrs. A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co. will dispose of the "Kingsland Manor" property. It is in many ways desirable and will call together a goodly number of persons already interested in the vicinity, and others connected with the large sales which have been or yet are to be held in New-Jersey.

On the premises Messrs. JOHNSON & MILLER will sell the "Nostrand Farm" property, consisting of 369 full city lots, situated between Clarenceville and Jamaica, four miles from the Brooklyn City limits, and eight miles from the New-York City Hall. No boys will be permitted to attend. Tickets and maps may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 25 Nassau-street. Parties desiring to attend the sale will take the ferry-boat either at the foot of Roosevelt-street at 10 o'clock, A. M., or at the foot of Grand-street same time, cross over to South Eighth-street, Williamsburg, and there take South Side Railroad to the property.

At Yonkers, Messrs. MALLORY & BLACKWELL will continue the sale of the "Archer Property." Maps and particulars may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 55 Liberty-street. A train will leave the Thirtieth-street depot at 11:50 A. M., and arrive in time for the sale.

At Bay Ridge, Mr. J. COLE will sell four elegant villas, with from four to twenty-eight lots of land to each. Maps and particulars may be had at the auctioneer's office, No. 369 Fulton-street, Brooklyn.

To-morrow will be a gala day at Scarsdale. Mr. A. J. BLEECKER, who has just finished a trip through the South, and returned fresh, hearty and in glorious good spirits, will sell a large tract of land at Scarsdale, on the line of the Harlem Railroad, and known as Westchester Park. No land sold this season is more delightfully located than this. The grade is high, the soil excellent and in a good state of cultivation, and the views very fine. From certain parts of it may be seen the Palisades on the one side, and the Sound on the other, while all about it are the beautifully improved and handsomely ornamented grounds and houses of the neighboring gentry. The attractions are very great, and it is safe to predict (if the weather prove fair) as large and respectable an assemblage as has gathered together this season will attend. The property is of the kind which must attract the public; it is even better than the advertisements represent it to be, and that, in this age, is something truly wonderful. People who have read of it, naturally expect something fine, and when they come to see it, they will find their expectations more than realized. The auctioneer will go to his labor, like a giant refreshed, and unquestionably add to his numerous and hard-earned laurels. His reputation, established for over forty years, is a guarantee that every representation he makes may be relied on. His jolly, smiling face and imperturbable good humor never fail to make him popular with all, and his ready wit and quick retort are invaluable in consummating a good sale. The arrangements are very extensive and complete. A fine lunch will be served on the arrival of the train, and no effort spared to make the guests comfortable and the sale a success. No boys will be allowed on the grounds, and a force of competent and experienced officers will be on hand to take care of any other parties who, knowing they are not wanted, are yet foolish enough to believe that the possession of a ticket entitles them to a ride and a lunch. The precautions are so thorough that it will be scarcely possible for one improper or objectionable person to get on the cars or attend the sale. A special train will leave the Twenty-sixth-street depot at 10:15 A. M. on the day of sale. Free tickets, maps and circulars may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 77 Cedar-street.

The same day Messrs. A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO. have a large and very attractive sale at North Elizabeth, N. J., consisting of eighty-one villa plots, each 50x150, and three new dwellings. The lots are nicely situated on high, healthy ground, and the buildings, erected by the owner, who is an experienced practical builder, commend themselves to purchasers. They are neatly finished, have a pleasant, cozy appearance, are well arranged inside, each having eleven rooms, with abundance of closets, &c., a good dry cellar and are substantial from top to bottom. The walls are twelve-inch, and built of the best North River brick. They command a fine view of the beautifully rolling country about them, and should bring good prices. North Elizabeth is a new station, on the line of the New-Jersey Railroad and Transportation Company, about a mile this side of the old Elizabeth station. Some sixteen trains stop at it daily. The station now in use is to be destroyed, and a new and elegant one, to cost some $50,000, to be put up in its stead. The builders are now at work, and it will probably be finished in about two months. From it to the property to be sold is scarcely a three-minutes' walk. The lots are within the corporation limits, and though they are quite rural and beautiful and free from all city nuisances, they are entitled to all its privileges and benefits. Gas and water is being introduced, and within sixty days it is expected the houses will be all supplied. Within five minutes' walk of the property is a fine undulating patch, intended for a park. It is not yet completed, but when finished it will be one of the prettiest in any of our suburban cities. An avenue 100 feet wide is now being made to meet one from Newark, well under way. This great boulevard, to be known as Newark-avenue, will be paved from end to end with wooden pavement, and will be one of the finest carriage drives within twenty miles of New-York. Parallel with this run half a dozen other wide avenues, and across it, 200 feet apart, are lines of streets, many of them graded, others projected. On every hand improvements are being made and new buildings erected. These are in every instance of a good class; no poor nor shabby ones are visible. The neighborhood is in every respect first class, and the people intend to keep it so, strictly. The same excellent arrangements which characterized the last sale made by this firm, at Plainfield, will be carried out to the letter at this, and visitors may anticipate a thoroughly pleasant and enjoyable day. Free tickets, maps, &c., may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 26 Pine-street, or of ROBERT DAVIS, No. 200 Broadway.

On Thursday two out-of-town sales will be made, one at Avenel, N. J., by Messrs. A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO., and one at Rutgers Park, N. J., by Messrs. A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co. Particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

In addition to the auction sales, our advertising columns contain descriptions of very many delightful places to be disposed of at private sale. Among these, and worthy of particular attention, is one located at the Highlands, N. J. On the banks of the Shrewsbury River, commanding a magnificent and uninterrupted view of the Atlantic Ocean and New-York Bay, embracing an extensive water front and the finest situation on the beautiful coast of New-Jersey. It is indeed very attractive. It is in immediate proximity to the Long Branch Railroad and the steel landing of the Shrewsbury and New-York steamboat. There are seven acres of land, with private residence, all or part of which will be sold. Address HIGHLAND, Box No. 135 Times Office.

COUNTRY REAL ESTATE.

ELEGANT RESIDENCE FOR SALE,

WITH IMMEDIATE POSSESSION;

And with the beautiful

FURNITURE, CARPETS, &c.,

If desired.

The mansion is built of cut stone, 32 feet square, Mansard roof, and extension 25x28 feet; elegant cut-stone porte cochere, with six arches, not surpassed anywhere; all City conveniences; three bath-rooms, water-closets, wash-basins, hot and cold water, gas, furnaces, &c.; an abundant supply of pure spring water, forced to a large tank in the house by hydraulic ram; all in perfect order throughout. Fine brick stable and carriage-house; stalls for six horses; cow-stable, chicken-house, &c.; pure spring water in the yard, natural flow; a magnificent glass grapery, 125 feet long, with the choicest quality of imported vines, in full bearing; a fine green-house, well stocked with choice plants, lemon and orange trees; a large garden of over two acres in extent; all kinds of fine fruit in abundance.

A never-failing brook running through the northern part of the land, with artificial lakes and fish-ponds.

A beautiful glen, handsomely shaded with majestic old forest trees.

The location is very desirable, being surrounded by Summer and Winter residences of gentlemen doing business in the City. There are over 22 acres of nice land; a fine pear orchard of more than 200 trees in full bearing; also, the finest of evergreen and domestic flowering shrubs, ornamental and shade trees.

The mansion is situated on a beautiful lawn of over six acres in extent, and is one of the most desirable places for sale in its neighborhood.

This property is situated on the east bank of the Hudson, between Irvington and Tarrytown, 23 miles from this City, commanding land and water views of unsurpassed beauty.

The above description is accurate in every particular, but the place, to be fully appreciated, must be seen and examined.

It is offered at a price far below its value, and on very easy terms.

Any gentleman wishing a very desirable place, with full value for his money, should apply at once to S. EMBERSON, No. 421 8th-av., who has photographic views, maps, &c., with full particulars.

TO REAL ESTATE SPECULATORS.—Here is a chance for you, certain and sure of 200 per cent. net profit in less than five years. The property is situated within 1¼ hours of New-York, with early prospects of the time being cut down to forty minutes, and the property contains extraordinary business advantages really surpassing that of Newark, and unrivalled for health and beauty of scenery; there are near 2,000 feet front lying on steamboat navigation, with wharves suited for factories and heavy business generally, and the property runs back on a gentle ascending grade to high table-lands, which afford rare views of the surrounding country; a thickly-settled and highly-cultivated section in New-Jersey, surrounded by several towns and cities, which can be seen. This property lies within corporation limits, and immediately overlooks a large and flourishing town, which affords excellent schools, both classical and primary, five churches, with stores, shops and several manufacturing establishments; and there are already a dozen or more daily trains to and from City, with prospects of fast through trains from this point without change to New-York during the year. The streets and avenues of the town are already opened up to this place, and some streets have been opened thereon. On all sides elegant suburban residences have been built, or are in process of erection for New-York merchants. There are ninety acres of this finely-situated and elegantly-improved property, every lot of which is fine for dwellings and business. We solicit mostly to examine this rare property, speculators, manufacturers and gentlemen wanting the prettiest estate in New-Jersey, and at a glance its true value will be seen and appreciated. The lawn is extensive, containing fine shade and ornamental trees, surrounded with beautiful hedges; drives all graveled and walks flagged. The shrubbery is choice and in great abundance; fine flower and a superior subsoiled vegetable gardens; an extensive grapery and orchards of rare excellence. The place is NICELY for its great abundance and most choice kinds of fruit, and the land for its perfect underdrainage and enriched qualities. No pains nor expense have been spared to make the whole place what it really is—A GARDEN SPOT. There has been left, most wisely, on this estate, a beautiful grove of six acres, intended for a "Public Park," and now affords a fine resort for picnic parties. No brokerage paid, and principals only will be negotiated with. Apply to W. H. H. JONES, No. 5 Murray-st., New-York, or SMITH & PAYNE, No. 702 Broad-st., Newark.

For railroad passes, maps and full particulars, apply at the office of the Avenel Association, No. 197 Broadway, and No. 6 Montgomery-st., Jersey City, and of the auctioneers, No. 26 Pine-st.

J. JOHNSON, Jr., Auctioneer.

BY JOHNSON & MILLER,

ABSOLUTE AUCTION SALE,

ON TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1869,

At 11 o'clock, on the premises, "NOSTRAND FARM," between CLARENCEVILLE and VAN WYCK AVS., at the junction of South Side, Long Island and Brooklyn and Jamaica Railroads; no further from New-York City Hall than Harlem, and far more accessible.

369 SPLENDID BUILDING LOTS.

All finely situated on level grades, free from rock and other objectionable features; on terms so easy and accommodating, and at prices so low that all may secure homesteads of their own.

There is probably no property in the vicinity of the City more advantageously situated than the "Nostrand Farm." Four different railroads stop opposite to and skirt its boundaries, affording constant communication with the metropolis at all hours of the day and night, with low rates of commutation. The property will bear inspection; none who attend the sale will be disappointed.

The following features will characterize this sale:

EVERY LOT OFFERED WILL BE SOLD ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT LIMIT—ten per cent. of the gross proceeds of the sale will be expended in erecting a depot and improving the streets. A free lunch will be ready on the arrival of the train. Free tickets will be issued over the South Side Railroad to the ground.

HOW TO GO.—On the morning of the sale step on the ferry-boat either at the foot of Roosevelt-st. at 10 o'clock A. M., or the foot of Grand-st. same time, cross over to South 8th-st., Williamsburg, and there take South Side Railroad to the property. Time from New-York, 45 minutes.

For maps and free tickets apply to JOHNSON & MILLER, No. 25 Nassau-st., New-York.

LEWIS E. WOOD, Auctioneer.

GREENVILLE PROPERTY.

100

VALUABLE LOTS AT

GREENVILLE, N. J., AT AUCTION.

Twenty minutes from Liberty-st., New-York, by Central Railroad of New-Jersey, and thirty minutes from Wall-st., or the City Hall, New-York.

LEWIS E. WOOD will sell at public auction, on THURSDAY, June 17, 1869, at 2 o'clock P. M., on the premises, some of the most desirable property ever offered in Hudson County. All the lots are beautifully located on high ground, commanding an extensive view of the Bay and City of New-York, Brooklyn, Staten Island, Long Island, &c. The property to be sold is on and near the Eastern Boulevard of Hudson County, and one mile distance from the station of the Central Railroad. Twenty-two trains, daily, each way, between Greenville and New-York, running from Liberty-st., to Greenville in twenty minutes for ten cents (excursion Tickets.) For particulars inquire at the Post Office Building, Greenville, N. J., or of LEWIS E. WOOD, No. 69 Montgomery-st., Jersey City; or M. ARMSTRONG, No. 19 Ferry-st., New-York.

PROPOSALS.

FORT HAMILTON,
NEW-YORK HARBOR, June 5, 1869.
PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED by the undersigned until 11 o'clock A. M., June 12, 1869, for supplying FRESH BEEF
to the troops at this Post.
The said Beef must be fresh, of a good marketable quality, in equal proportion of fore and hindquarters, thick, corded and loose flank, to be cut in pieces to be delivered at this Post free of cost, in such quantity as may be, from time to time, required by and on such days as the commanding officer shall designate, not less than three times a week.
The necks of cattle slaughtered for beef to be delivered under this agreement shall be cut off at the fourth cervical joint, and the breast trimmed down. The shanks of forequarters shall be cut off from three to four inches above the knee-joint, and of hindquarters from six to eight inches above the gambrel or hock-joint.
Separate proposals in duplicate will also be received by the undersigned up to the same hour and date above mentioned, for supplying commissioned officers and their families stationed at this Post, or supplied therefrom, with such choice Fresh Beef as they may from time to time require, such as Sirloin and Porterhouse Steak, Standing Ribs, or Rib Roasts.
These contracts to be in force six months, or such less time as the Commissary-General shall direct, commencing on the first day of July, 1869, and subject to the approval of the Commanding-General of the Department of the East.
A deposit of fifty dollars shall accompany each proposal which will be returned to the owners after the bids are opened, except that of the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, whose money will be returned after the first satisfactory delivery of fresh beef for issue to the troops is made on the contract.
In case of failure on the contractor in the quality or quantity of the fresh beef stipulated to be delivered, then the Commissary at Fort Hamilton shall have power to supply the deficiency by purchase, and the contractor will be charged with the difference of cost.
The contractor will be required to enter into bonds for the sum of five thousand dollars, signed also by two responsible sureties, whose names must be mentioned in the bonds.
The proposals will be opened at 11 o'clock A. M., on the 12th day of June, 1869, at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. H., at which time and place bidders are requested to be present.
Proposals will be marked "Proposals for Beef," and addressed Brevet-Colonel R. M. HALL,
Quartermaster First Artillery A. C. S.,
Fort Hamilton, N. Y. H.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE received at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Education, corner of Second and Elm sts., and nowhere else, until TUESDAY, the 22d day of June, 1869, at 12 o'clock, noon, for supplying the coal and wood required for the public schools in this City for the ensuing year; any six thousand (6,000) tons of coal, and three thousand (3,000) cords of oak wood, and one thousand one hundred (1,100) cords of pine wood, more or less.
The coal must be of the best quality of white ash, furnace and stove sizes, in good order, two thousand two hundred and forty (2,240) pounds to the ton, and must be delivered in the bins at the several school buildings. The proposals must state the mines from which it is proposed to supply the coal, (to be furnished from the mines named,) if accepted, and must state the price per ton of two thousand two hundred and forty (2,240) pounds.
The quantities of the various sizes of coal required will be about as follows, viz.: Four thousand tons of furnace size, twelve hundred tons of stove size, one hundred and twenty-five tons of egg size and seventy-five tons of nut size.
The oak wood must be of the best quality, the sticks not less than four (4) feet long, and not less than three (3) inches in diameter.
The pine wood must be of the best quality, not less than three (3) feet six (6) inches long.
The proposals must state the price per cord of one hundred and twenty-eight (128) cubic feet, solid measure, for both pine and oak wood, and also the price per cut for sawing and splitting per load—the quantity of oak wood to be split only as required by the Committee on Supplies.
The wood will be inspected and measured under the supervision of the Inspector of Fuel of the Board of Education, and must be delivered at the schools, when ordered, as follows:
Two-thirds of the quantity required from the first day of July to the twenty-fifth day of August, and the remainder as required by the Committee on Supplies.
Said wood, both oak and pine, must be delivered sawed, and, as regards splits, must be cut and split and piled with the same in the yards, cellars, vaults or bins of said schools.
Proposals must be directed to the "Committee on Supplies of the Board of Education," and should be indorsed "Proposals for Coal," or "Proposals for Wood," as the case may be.
The Committee reserve the right to reject any or all of the proposals offered.
TIMOTHY BRENNAN,
THOMAS MURPHY,
SAMUEL A. LEWIS,

ENGLAND AND AMERICA

Views of an Englishman on the Alabama Question.

Brilliant Speech by Mr. Justin McCarthy.

Mr. JUSTIN MCCARTHY, recently editor of the London Morning Star, (JOHN BRIGHT'S organ,) lectured at Cooper Institute last evening on "England and the Alabama," before an audience of about two hundred persons.

Mr. THEODORE TILTON occupied the chair, and in a brief address introduced the lecturer to the audience.

MR. M'CARTHY'S ADDRESS.

Mr. MCCARTHY, who, on coming forward, was loudly cheered, said he proposed to tell his audience how England felt once on the various questions now agitating the public mind, and how she felt at the present time. There were, he said, some reasons why he felt qualified to speak on these subjects. He was, during the whole time of the rebellion here, constantly engaged in politics in England. He might claim, also, to speak with impartiality on the subject, for though coming from England he was not an Englishman, and consequently felt none of those prejudices which an Englishman naturally must feel on questions in which his country's interests and honor were involved. During the war he had constantly followed the course of events in this country, and had felt a passionate sympathy for the cause of the North. [Cheers.] There were, he said, two questions to be considered—the escape of the Alabama, and the granting by England of belligerent rights to the South. After referring to the ambiguity of international law, and the impossibility of defining exactly the duties of one country toward another, he said the escape of the Alabama was one of the greatest wrongs ever done under the color of international law. Built by English capital and labor, manned by English seamen, armed with English guns, and built of English oak, she glided from an English river to prey on the commerce of a friendly Power. He was in England at the time this pirate ship was being constructed, and he believed no person in England doubted that the Alabama was about to go forth as a pirate, to prey on the commerce of the North. Mr. LAIRD'S defence of his conduct was true, reasonable and just. He never concealed the purpose of the Alabama. The English Government knew well all about this ship; there was no concealment or mystery about the matter. LAIRD was simply a ship-builder; he probably cared little or nothing about the war between the North and South; he would have built a ship for Satan if he had been offered the terms for it. The plain truth was that the Government knew well what the Alabama was building for, and where she was going. There never was, and never could have been, concealment in the matter. The English Government was not at this time friendly to the United States. Lord PALMERSTON was one of those singularly constituted men who concerned himself little as to the fate of friend or foe. Lord RUSSELL would have preferred, perhaps, that the North should win. Lord ARGYLE, Mr. CHARLES BULLER, and others, were friendly to the North, but their influence was not great. English Society was in favor of the South. Even the great liberal Reform Club was so. Then there were the "Philistines," as Mr. ARNOLD called them. They were totally ignorant of the causes of the rebellion, and knew nothing at all about this country, but they had made up their minds that the South ought to and must succeed. It was a singular and honorable fact that although the working classes of Great Britain were the only real sufferers there by the war, they were the steadfast friends of the North from the beginning to the end of the rebellion. [Applause.] The real grievance in regard to the Alabama was the indifference of the English Government on the subject. They considered the American cause not worth thinking about seriously, and that the escape of the Alabama was not a point of much importance to either England or America.

BELLIGERENT RIGHTS AND SUMNER'S SPEECH.

The second question is the wrong done, or supposed to be done, by England when she granted belligerent rights to the Southern States, combined with the state of affairs produced by the speech of Mr. SUMNER. The English people had, as he had himself, a deep admiration for Mr. SUMNER as the leader in the great American struggle against slavery. He may be regarded as the fittest to speak on this subject, and has stated it fairly and justly, and in a manner not to be disputed. The point is not whether she was wrong in granting belligerent rights, but whether the wrong was so distinct and emphatic as to form a proper subject of arbitration? Her position is that whatever cause of complaint this Government may have growing out of the injuries inflicted by the Alabama she is willing to submit to arbitration, but her conduct in granting belligerent rights she will not allow to be put before any Judge or any tribunal. This act, which permitted the Confederate cruisers to enter British seas and British ports, Mr. SUMNER characterizes as the highest of the wrongs inflicted by England on this nation. Mr. SUMNER has mistaken the point—it is a matter of fact, not of opinion. When there is a war between two nations a neutral Power has a perfect right to concede belligerent rights to either or both, and an actual state of hostilities is the only prerequisite to the exercise of that right. Certainly none will dispute that actual hostilities did exist between the North and the South before England conceded belligerent rights to the latter. True, it cannot be regarded as a friendly act to have conceded them so soon; she might at least have waited for Mr. ADAMS' arrival, but as a strict right, according to international law, she was justified in its exercise the moment hostilities began. Mr. SUMNER'S high position gave influence to his speech; his unlikelihood to exaggerate, his friendliness toward England, his moderation and love of peace, all tended to give weight to the conviction of England, that—when he considered this a matter which must be settled, and concluding his strong statement with the hope that war might be avoided—the American people sought not reparation for a wrong, but war at all hazards. Though in refusing to submit the question of her national prerogative to arbitration she has the strict letter of justice on her side, yet because of having justice with her, should she not the more willingly submit to arbitration? Why should she direct the decision of the first two questions and say, "Though in the former I may have done you wrong, in the latter I shall be my own judge." Let her not rather say, in submitting both to arbitration, "We shall let America and the world know that we hold back nothing, and if we have done a wrong, we are ready to make reparation for it." Mr. SUMNER has made a mistake in stating that the public feeling of England was against the North, or that she threw her sentiment into the cause of slavery. Some few, one or two journals, perhaps, ventured timidly to express sympathy with the cause of which slavery was a part, but were there not in the Northern States also those who did the same? I venture to say that here, in the City of New-York, you had more sympathizers with slavery than could be found from John O'Groat's house to Land's End. Too much stress has been laid on this question of sympathy. Indeed, it seems unbecoming the dignity of nations to talk of sympathy. It is time our minds were cleared of this trash, and see rather what substantial wrong has been done. But even in this matter of sympathy Mr. SUMNER could not have been more mistaken. When the first NAPOLEON charged the Government of PITT with sympathizing with assassination, Mr. FOX told him it was time to clear his head of that trash. So also is it time that the American people cleared their heads of the trash that the great mass of the English people sympathized with the South in the recent struggle. That subject had better be dropped. During the Crimean war, perhaps in no city out of St. Petersburg did the fall of Sebastopol excite more disappointment and regret than in New-York, yet England never thought of making it a cause of grave national complaint against America. When Prussia was at war there were then in England, both among Press and people, those whose sympathies were with Prussia, but that proportion was much smaller than that sympathizing with the United States. Some of the English journals criticised Prussia much more severely than America; we gave them bitter words, and they gave us bitter words in return, yet it was never dreamed that it would become a cause of national dispute between the two nations after the restoration of peace, or that it would ever endanger amicable relations between them. Mr. MCCARTHY then went on to pay a high tribute to the mass of English workmen and the great middle class, to RICHARD COBDEN, JOHN BRIGHT, JOHN STUART MILL, GOLDWIN SMITH and others, who, together, so promptly recognized the justice of the American cause, and clung to it to the last. The latter gentleman he said, might be forgiven if his English heart was somewhat aroused by the speech of Mr. SUMNER, when it is remembered that in her darkest hour he came out from retired study, without fortune, and under the pearl, to advocate the American cause in a bitter battle lasting for years, and in beginning which he threw away the scabbard.

THE FUTURE.

The question is whether or not England will consent to make reparation for the injuries inflicted on American commerce by the Alabama. He thought she would do so when the people of England arrived at a cooler and calmer frame of mind than they appear to enjoy at present. If it had not been for the singularly unhappy choice of a delegate made by this country, he believed that the vexed question would have been settled long ago. But America sent over a sort of jolly Polonius, who laughed and talked and eat and drank with every man and woman that asked him. "Come," said this jolly fellow, "we'll give you all you want, and you'll do the same by us, of course, and all our troubles will be ended." The English were, of course, delighted to find how easily the Alabama question was to be settled, and made much of Mr. JOHNSON accordingly. But they were soon aroused from this fool's paradise. Mr. SUMNER'S speech took them completely aback, and it was but little wonder that they looked upon it in the light they did. Notwithstanding all this, however, he believed that England would soon settle down to a calm, cool consideration of the question, and would, herself, propose terms which this country could accept without derogating from the position she now occupied. It must be remembered, he said, that great changes have taken place in Great Britain since the war was over. The people had obtained such an extension of the franchise as amounted almost to universal suffrage. The Democratic element was becoming stronger every day. Women, he had no doubt, would vote in England long before her American sister was allowed to deposit her ballot. He then referred to the disestablishment of the Irish Church, and to the creation of life peerages. This latter, he thought, would eventually change the whole character of the House of Peers, and render it more like our own Senate. In conclusion, he said: "You do not want to humiliate England, or to oblige her to make any degrading acknowledgment; you merely want such reparation as a great and high-spirited nation may make. [Applause.] You have now a representative at the Court of St. James with whom England will be glad to treat on this or any other subject. He is as much appreciated and esteemed there as here, and he is known to be a thorough American." [Applause.]

After a vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. WELLS, had been passed, the audience dispersed.

ALLEGED ELECTION FRAUDS.

Who is Assistant Alderman of the Seventh District?—An Interesting Contest in the Courts.

In the Supreme Court, Circuit, yesterday, Mr. Justice MULLIN presiding, the case of the people on the relation of J. E. MCVEANY vs. PETER CULKIN, was called on for trial. Mr. C. S. SPENCER, who appeared in behalf of the relator or plaintiff, answered ready. The defendant was not ready. This action is of more than usual interest to the public, and hence we will endeavor to give an outline of the facts on which it is based.

At the election in this City held last December, MCVEANY claims that he was elected Assistant Alderman of the Seventh Aldermanic District. Mr. PETER CULKIN insisted that he was elected, and the Board of County Canvassers, after taking a great amount of testimony, decided that the latter had received the majority of the votes, and hence he received a certificate of election. MCVEANY thereupon commenced an action, by the aid of the Attorney-General of the State, and in the name of the People thereof, in the nature of a quo warranto, to try the question. Astounding frauds in canvassing the ballots, and also in making the returns, are alleged against either side, and when the trial, which is set down for Monday next, takes place, we may expect testimony of much interest to all who claim to be, or who may hereafter become, voters for municipal officers.

The cause was the first on the calendar, and when called, Mr. A. SULLIVAN, for the defendant, asked that the case go over. He had not expected that there would be a Judge there to hold the Court; he had, however, issued subpœnas for a large number of witnesses, but they had not been served. Hence, as to this client, the case could not be tried. It was, he said, an action which would involve the examination not only of an unusual number of witnesses, but of several new points of law. There was the important question of law as to whether the decision of the Board of Canvassers is not conclusive and final. He concluded by asking the Court to let the case go over the term, or in the event of that motion being denied, that he have one week in which to get his witnesses together.

Mr. C. S. SPENCER opposed the motion. He had no suspicion as to Mr. SULLIVAN'S motives; no suspicion that he did not fully believe all he said; but he had been imposed upon, he had been deceived by his own client. In this case Mr. MCVEANY was elected but for one year. Five months of that year had already passed. The defendant, having received the certificate of election, occupies the office and reaps the emoluments thereof. Every additional day is an irreparable injury to the plaintiff. It is a day gone for him and a day gained for the defendant. As to the last questions they had already been passed upon by two Judges of this Court. Before the Board of Canvassers the witnesses had been examined in three hours, and it would take very little longer to do it in Court. The canvassers of two election districts had made out and signed their reports, and placed them in envelopes. Those envelopes had been broken open and one hundred votes erased from the plaintiff's votes and transferred to the defendant's account. The erasures were so clumsy that without his spectacles his Honor could see them. Then there were the original canvassers who would prove the alteration and the returns to the Metropolitan Police, which showed the alteration. The simple examination of these witnesses would not take long; the questions would be short to the facts, and the answers also. If the case was put over, experience warned him to believe that a stay of proceedings would be served before the case again came on. Then the case would be put over to October. His Honor had lived in a high, pure atmosphere, where he could scarcely know the power which the organization that supported the defendant was exercising. As for the affidavits on this application, they were nothing; Mr. SULLIVAN'S were only on information and belief. The certificate of the Deputy Sheriff was, that he had not found the witnesses. The certifier was one of the defendant's witnesses, and a political friend of the defendant's. His certificate gave no facts,—neither when he received the subpœnas, nor what efforts he made to serve them. The only thing he certified was the receipt of the certificates and a failure to serve. He would venture to say he could be found in an hour. One half an hour one had been seen by the plaintiff. This was the seventh time they had been brought before the Court. His client was not a rich man. He could not afford the expenses of many adjournments. The case was really more important to the public than to him, for the real question here was whether the elections might be a farce; whether a candidate, after incurring all the expenses and anxieties of a canvass, might be still exposed to and defeated by the frauds of the managers of an election and by forgeries of returns, without any real resort in the Courts. Whether, in fact, the slow pace of justice could overtake effectually the swift pace of political fraud. This was involved in the question of this adjournment.

Mr. SULLIVAN replied that the question before Judge CLERKE, on which Mr. SPENCER relied, was not decided on the law questions at all, but being merely a motion to substitute a demurrer for an answer, Judge CLERKE had decided that that motion was late. As to the present motion, the defendant had not been able to get his witnesses, and hence could not proceed to trial.

Mr. SPENCER suggested that one reason why the witnesses were not forthcoming was because the subpœnas had been put into the hands of a Deputy Sheriff, who is an intimate personal and political friend of the defendant. This same deputy helped to elect the defendant, and of course he will aid him in holding his present illegal position.

After some further discussion, the Court set the case down peremptorily for Monday next.

POLITICAL MOVEMENTS.

Union Republican General Committee.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Union Republican General Committee of this City was held last evening at the headquarters of the General Committee, Broadway and Twenty-second-street, JOHN F. GRIDLEY, President, in the chair. There was a large attendance of the members. The business of the evening was the election of officers for the ensuing year. Colonel GEO. B. VAN BRUNT was elected Chairman. Three gentlemen were nominated for the office of Vice-Chairman—Mr. J. E. ELLERY, Mr. RIDDABAND and Mr. J. M. THOMPSON.

On the second voting the numbers were: For ELLERY, 36; for THOMPSON, 2; for RIDDABAND, 1.

Messrs. A. H. KIRCH and JOHN QUAKENBUSCH, Secretaries of the General Committee, were appointed to act as Secretaries for the Executive Committee.

The Thirteenth District Republican Association—Exciting Meeting.

A meeting of the Thirteenth Assembly District Republican Association was held last evening at the hall corner of Eighteenth-street and Eighth-avenue, GEORGE M. MITCHELL, President, in the chair. The Association is one of those claiming to be regular, whose delegation to the General Committee was thrown out, and at its last meeting a resolution was passed appointing a committee of five members, with a view to reorganizing the General Committee, and to report a plan of action. The report of the Committee was presented, but the consideration thereof was adjourned until the next meeting, which is to be held on Monday evening next.

At the close of the general meeting, a meeting of the District Executive Committee was held, Mr. GEO. M. MITCHELL in the chair. The following officers were elected: Mr. ISAAC DAYTON, President; Messrs PRIPP and WAUDELL, Vice-Presidents, and Mr. GEO. ROSE, Treasurer.

Tammany Society.

A regular meeting of the Tammany Society was held last evening, Grand Sachem WM. M. TWEED presiding. After the installation of Sachem GEORGE W. MCLEAN, the following persons were initiated as members of the Order: General H. W. SLOCUM, Hon. JOHN MORRISSEY, Hon. JAS. BROOKS, DANIEL SHERRY, JAMES MCGREGOR, JOHN T. NORD, E. R. ROBINSON and S. F. HIGGINS. The Sachems were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the regular Fourth of July celebration. The Society then adjourned to meet on the 5th of July at noon in Tammany Hall.

The First-avenue Tragedy—Funeral of Gerdes.

The remains of RICHARD GERDES, the victim of the First-avenue tragedy, were yesterday taken to Newburg for interment. They were placed in an elegant casket which cost $250, and were followed by the members of the different societies to which he belonged, and many of his friends. He was highly esteemed and is sincerely mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends. THOMAS COSTELLO, the man with whom the difficulty began, was so far recovered as to leave the hospital on a permit, and is now at home. The ball has not been found, and still remains in the body.

THE TURF.

The Jerome Park Race Meeting—Programme of the Second Day's Sport—The Probable Starters for the Westchester Cup—Great Sales of Thoroughbred Stock.

The second day's racing at Jerome Park to-day gives promise of being unusually brilliant and interesting. There are four races on the card, all of which will be productive of splendid sport. The first event is a mile-heat race for a purse of $800; the second is for the Westchester Cup, value $1,500, added to a sweepstakes of $50 each, play or pay; the third is a selling race for all ages, and the last a purse of $500, for three-year olds, in which the winner of the Belmont Stakes would have to carry 10 pounds extra, but Mr. BELMONT, satisfied with his decisive victory in the stake bearing his name on Saturday, has generously left the field open to others, and has not entered either of his fine colts, Fenian or Glenelg, although either would have the race at his mercy, judging from the running in the Belmont Stakes. The entries for all the three purses to-morrow are unusually numerous, and the horses of first-class quality; consequently, we anticipate the finest racing yet witnessed on this course.

THE MILE-HEAT RACE,

for a purse of $800, all ages, with the entrance money for second horse, has seven horses entered, all of them being first-class public performers and winners. These are, Vsley, 4 years, 108 pounds; Alta Vela, 3 years, 87 pounds; Vauxhall, 4 years, 108 pounds; Corsican, 4 years, 105 pounds; Red Dick, 6 years, 118 pounds; R. B. Connolly, 3 years, 114 pounds, and Metairie, 5 years, 114 pounds. In the pools sold last night at the Jockey Club Rooms in Broadway, Vauxhall and Alta Vela were alternately the favorites in the betting, Metairie and Corsican standing next in estimation.

The Westchester Cup is certain to produce a most interesting race, as the following six well-known and highly-performed horses will start: Local, (who won this race last year,) Lancaster, (the Saratoga Cup winner,) General Duke, Pleasureville, Abdel Kader and The Banshee. Lancaster is the favorite, but closely pressed in the pools by Local and Pleasureville, who have a strong body of friends, as have also General Duke and Abdel Kader, many first-rate turfmen and good judges having a strong partiality for the last-named horses for this race.

In the selling race, a dash of a mile and three-quarters, the entries are Flora Mclvor, 5 years, 104 pounds; Boaster, 4 years, 96 pounds; and Oberon, 4 years, 101 pounds. Boaster has the call in the betting.

For the three-year-old race, a dash of a mile and one furlong, there are eight horses entered, viz.: Glengary, Vespucius, brother to Red Dick; Invernglas, Hanover, Onyx, Legatee and Colonel T., all carrying 110 pounds each, except Invernglas, who has 3 pounds allowed for sex. Judging from the running in the Belmont Stakes, Glengary ought to be near winning this race, with Onyx close up. Taken altogether, to-day's racing programme is the best ever provided by the American Jockey Club at any of their previous meetings.

Great Sales of Thoroughbred Stock—Mr. Watson's and Mr. Cameron's Sales.

To-morrow the great sale of thoroughbred horses at the celebrated breeding farm of Mr. JAMES S. WATSON, at Valley Brook, N. J., will take place. For many years one of the staunchest patrons of the turf in America, and owner of racers, Mr. WATSON has now determined to retire from the turf, and offers for sale all his breeding stock, comprising seven magnificent brood mares, one two-year-old colt and six yearlings; the latter by Censor or Jerome Edgar. The brood mares comprise the following: 1. B. m. Nannie Lewis (the dam of Aldeburan) by Glencoe, dam by imported Barefoot; foaled in 1851, and stinted to Jerome Edgar. The b. m. Gloamin, 13 years, (full sister to Nebula, the dam of Asteroid,) with a bay colt foal by her side by Jerome Edgar, and again stinted to him. B. m. Pauta, 17 years, the dam of Patti, Bonnie Lass, &c., by Revenue, dam by Priam, with a bay filly foal by her side by Jerome Edgar, and again stinted to him. B. m. Minnie Minor, 8 years, (sister to Julius,) by Lexington, dam by Glencoe, with a bay filly foal by her side by Jerome Edgar, and again stinted to him. B. m. imp. L'Anglaise, 10 years, bred by Her Majesty at Hampton Court, England, by Hobbie Noble, dam by Irish Birdcatcher, with a fine bay colt foal by Jerome Edgar at her side, and again bred to him. B. m. Chignon, 8 years, (full sister to Caltroon,) by Lexington, dam by Glencoe, also with a bay colt foal by Jerome Edgar at her side, and again stinted to him. Ch. m. Jessie Dixon, 9 years, (the dam of the famous Narragansett,) by Arlington, dam by John Blunt, with a chestnut filly by her side by Prophet, and stinted to Jerome Edgar. It is rarely that such an opportunity occurs for breeders of racing stock securing such a splendid collection of blood mares, who have been selected with sound practical judgment, and regardless of cost by their present owner.

There is one two-year-old colt also offered, and six yearlings, the former, Cannoncar, is a handsome-looking chestnut colt, by Prophet, out of Jessie Dixon, dam of Narragansett; he is engaged in the Dinner-party Stakes, in 1870. The yearlings comprise a bay colt, by Censor or Jerome Edgar, dam Nannie Lewis; a chestnut colt by Censor, out of Julia; a brown colt, by Censor, dam The Gloamin; a bay colt, by Prophet, out of Jesse Dixon, and a bay filly by Jerome Edgar out of L'Anglaise, all of them remarkably fine-looking and racing-like. Jerome Edgar himself was one of the best and stoutest horses of his day, as his splendid race with the renowned Idlewild on the Centreville Course, Long Island, run in 7:26¼, and in which he was a good second, convincingly proves. His pedigree is also unexceptionable, being by Star Davis (a son of Glencoe and a Priam mare) out of Zenobia, by imported Zingaree. Although Mr. WATSON is retiring from the turf, he does not purpose selling his favorite sire, Jerome Edgar, but will retain him in his own possession.

On Thursday, at Jerome Park, Mr. CLIFTON, of Clifton Stud Farm, Staten Island, will sell by auction four magnificent yearlings, of which three are by the promising imported thoroughbred stallion Leamington, and one by Breckinridge, the sire of Morrissey, Urbana, &c., all bred by Mr. CAMERON. The first is a yearling filly by Leamington, dam Jerusalem by Jericho, foaled May 6; she is consequently full sister to the promising young two-year old who won the $10,000 match last Wednesday. The second is by Leamington, dam Bapta by Kingston, who is the dam of Glenelg, who won his $1,000 match with Mr. HERON'S Rapture last week, and also ran second to his stable companion Fenian, for the Belmont Stakes, which he could doubtless have won had he been wanted. The third is a filly by Leamington out of Nellie Graves, by imported Eclipse, and the fourth a bay colt by Breckinridge, dam Sophia by Bonnie Scotland. All these youngsters are remarkably fine, well grown and promising, and will undoubtedly turn out racers of great merit. Only two of Leamington's produce have run in this country, one bred by Mr. CAMERON himself, and the other in Kentucky, where the imported sire spent his first season in America. The first gave his maiden race in the $10,000 match, and the other, Anna Mace, the sweepstakes for two-year-old fillies, run last Saturday, both winning in such remarkably easy style as to stamp them as racers of unusual merit.

At the same time and place the well-known race horse Jerome Jackson will be sold. He is now five years old, very highly bred, being by imported Australian, dam Alabama, (the dam of Red Dick,) and was a splendid racer, having won the Produce Stakes, mile heats, at the Lexington Fall Meeting in 1867, in 1:44¾, 1:48, 1:50; and the Association Stakes, two-mile heats, at the same meeting, in 3:41½, 3:44¾. He will make a capital sire.

WRECK NEAR BARNEGAT.

The steamer Heiress, of the Boston and Philadelphia Transportation Company, as before stated in the TIMES, went ashore on Saturday morning fifteen miles above Barnegat, at a place on the Jersey coast called Cranberry Inlet. She is a vessel of 600 tons burden, built in compartments, and had on board at the time of the disaster a few passengers, who were all saved, and a general cargo of Eastern manufactured goods. The vessel is insured in New-York, the freight in Boston. A rumor has been circulated that because of the compasses being out of order she lost her way in the dense fog prevailing that morning and ran ashore. The truth of this statement is not fully ascertained.

The latest dispatches from the agent on the spot employed by the Coast Wrecking Company, in whose hands the Heiress is at present, contain favorable reports. She lies in about twelve feet of water, and hope is entertained of her being afloat again within a few days, the weather permitting. Captain PERRY and JOHN A. BROWN, with some fifty wreckers, have been sent to the scene of the disaster in the Company's steamer Winans. Cables and anchors are laid, and every preparation is being made for taking out cargo and lightening the vessel, for which purpose the lighters Only Son and Curtain are on the ground. Yesterday afternoon the steamer Relief was likewise dispatched to Cranberry Point. Up to the present no advices have been received in this City concerning the passengers and their disposal.

Capture of an Alleged Bank Robber.

On Saturday night Detectives FOLK and VIDETO, of the Brooklyn Police, arrested, in New-York, JAMES GRIFFIN, a man about 33 years of age, on suspicion of being the person who, some months since, robbed the Park Savings Bank, and, some time previous, the Dime Savings Bank, both in Brooklyn. The prisoner was taken to Brooklyn and locked up to await examination. Captain OLMSTEAD, Cashier of the Park Savings Bank, could not identify him as the man who made a deposit last February, but before the box which was stolen was missed. The District Attorney (MORRIS) thinking that he had sufficient evidence to convict him of the robbery of the Dime Savings Bank, concluded to hold him on that, and accordingly sent him to jail until yesterday morning. Reports of both robberies alluded to were published in the Times just after their occurrence, and it may be remembered that the Dime Savings Bank robbery consisted in the mysterious taking of a tin cash-box from the bank. The box contained title deeds and other documents of nominal value, but beside it stood a box containing a large amount of money and bonds, which was evidently the one which the thief had intended to steal. Soon after this robbery, GRIFFIN was arrested by Police Captain JOURDAN, in New-York, and the stolen property found in his possession. GRIFFIN was taken before Justice WALSH, yesterday, and held for examination at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

SENATOR SPRAGUE.

Serenade to the Senator by the Workingmen at Newark—His Response.

Senator SPRAGUE, of Rhode Island, was serenaded in Newark last evening by several societies of workingmen, headed by the Harnessmakers' Association. Senator SPRAGUE came to New-Jersey for the purpose of taking part in the annual picnic of the Societies, which occurs in this locality to-day. He arrived in Newark about 10 o'clock last evening, and was serenaded at the house of Mr. A. E. HALSTED, where he is a guest.

Mr. SPRAGUE, in response to the address and to the applause which greeted him, spoke as follows:

FELLOW-CITIZENS: You are from New-Jersey, I am from New-England. I have, in presenting myself to you, no man's interest. I am for the people of the country for one reason, that by and through the people of the country the Union is great. [Cries of "Bully."] To-morrow it is my expectation to give you those utterances which I believe are for your benefit and for the benefit of the nation. [Applause.] I stand here simply as the advocate of those interests which will contribute to the nation's advantage. Why do I stand before you? Why before any portion of the American people in the advocacy of any peculiar views? I do so because I have assumed the high prerogatives of a Senator from the United States voluntarily; and, in assuming them, I have sworn to do my duty regardless of consequences. I have, in the investigation of your affairs, come to the conclusion that they are mismanaged from ignorance, or from willfulness. I care not which, each is equally criminal in its way. I have come to the conclusion that the great interests of the country are in danger. It has been my fortune recently to travel over a great portion of the Southern States, and to associate with the Southern people. They as well as you are deeply anxious concerning their fates as well as the fate of republican institutions. They believe that they are at this time under a greater trial than they were even when they themselves were antagonizing against the power of the Government of the United States. But when I speak from that point of view, I don't lose sight of the individual and his family, and it is to him and for him that I am now a worker, because in that is the honor, progress and strength of the nation. I work in that direction because as an American citizen I don't desire, and, if my voice is of any effect, will not permit that two shall be any but the foremost nation in civilization; but my friends when I examine the position, and the character, and the progress of nations which are foremost with us in the present civilization, I am not encouraged as to our own condition, and it is for that reason alone that I have come before you and I raise my voice everywhere in deep anxiety for the nation. I don't come before you for any consideration touching me personally. If there is any merit in the thoughts which I utter, take them, canvass them, act upon them; but if there is anything that you or your friends or anybody can meet in argument and dispute, repudiate them. [Applause.] I wish to establish you in prosperous employment, and I shall point out to you the way by which and through which this whole people shall be profitably and prosperously employed, and if there is anybody that can controvert that plan of mine, I am willing that he shall do it. When I say to you that, notwithstanding the great war that you have finished, that, in my judgment, that form of Government is more in jeopardy to-day than at any time in its existence, I do not say that from any idle expression or idle word. There is deep import in the surroundings concerning those who desire special protection, those who have received immaterial benefits out of the war, and who are desirous of perpetuating them as soon under a different form of government. I will not forfeit my own self-respect by refusing to raise my voice when I believe the interest and the progress of those by whom I have been called upon require it. When the American citizen is unable to speak his impressions, then goes liberty, then freedom is not worth a snap. [Applause.] Whether it is here or elsewhere, whether it is in the presence of power or in the presence of weakness, no matter where it is, let the two voices speak the impressions of the heart and mind, and when that does not meet response, or whenever that meets opposition, your liberties are beginning to wane.

The Senator then retired amid loud cheers, and the crowd dispersed.
